A weekly newspaper devoted to the promotion of the general welfare and published for the enlightenment, entertainment and benefit of the citizens of Kings Mountain and its vicinity.

WHERE DO YOU FIT?
Where do you fit in this world of ours. With its bustle and bustle of work. Are you one of the flock that watch on the clock; Or are you with those who work?

Do you hit the job with a smile or frown; Do you carry a grudge all day. Are you one of the flock that watch on the clock; Are you working for more than pay? Is your job man-sized and worth the while. When you've tallied up your score. Are you keeping 'fit and trim' your bit. And perhaps a wee bit more?

Are you one of the average just drifting along; Are you listed as profit or loss; Are you stallin' for time or startin' to climb; How much are you puttin' across? Just pull in your slack and count up your score. Leave what you're aimin' to hit. Don't waste ammunition and all your ambition. But find out just where you fit. —Selected.

THE FUNCTIONS OF AN EDITOR:
The title "editor" is sometimes misunderstood by newspaper readers not because they want to misunderstand but because they have never been told just what the functions are of the person who holds this title. An editor, to explain it briefly, is one who superintends, reviews, prepares literary matter for publication. The title does not necessarily mean that the policy of the newspaper is set or controlled by the editor. On large newspapers, there are many editors, and policy is usually decided upon by the managing editor. The duties of the other editors, sport, city, suburban, women's page, and others, is simply to carry out the duties prescribed in their particular spheres.

In fully 90 percent of weekly newspapers, the editor is also the publisher. In other words he fills the dual role of preparing literary matter for publication, and of deciding upon policy as well.

Essentially the editor is a human being, writing and dealing with men, women and children. He may be young or old, lay or energetic, bold or timid, superficial or deep, quarrelsome or constructive, slovenly, or faultless, guessing or generous. He is certain to be human. He reacts to praise and criticism, to good and evil in much the same way as those who share community life with him. The editor, and this is true of 90 percent of all small town editors, recognizes the inherent democracy of the countryside. He is still instinctively old-fashioned to believe with the wisdom that the Ten Commandments and the Golden Rule have and they have been repeated, improved upon or modified by modern advances.

The editor is a student of community affairs. He has at his disposal records of public organizations in the community, and it is from his study of these records that he makes his editorial comment. He is not easily swayed by hysteria. Like the people he serves, he uses good common sense in his reasoning. The editors of weekly newspapers, serving the rural areas, are a greater power than most people suspect, for it is a political fact that many members of the Legislature and Congress are elected from the rural areas than from the cities.

It is the editor who decides what is fit and what is not fit to print. It is he who differentiates between news and propaganda. It is he who can, if he will, give the leadership that every energetic community must have. He is not hard to get a long with, but he has a code of ethics which often causes him to refuse business rather than accept it against well grounded principles. He is not a super-human. He is a hard-working individual doing an important job in the community to the best of his ability, and if at times he fails in his task, it must be remembered that he is like every other human being in the community, heir to the frailties with which all mankind is endowed.—Concord Daily Tribune.

HERE AND THERE
Raymond E. Lynch
One thing I have definitely learned about the boys in service is that those who have seen the most talk the least.

Here's a good one on Dr. E. H. Bates. He was sitting next to Craig Watson, visiting member of the Mountain Home Club at the joint meeting last Thursday, when the president of the club asked him who was next to him and he blurted back "Nothing."

I filled out my income tax blank last week, and I sincerely hope I never have to go thru anything like that again. I notice by the paper that

Dear Eleanor Roosevelt is off on another trip to "cheer" the boys up. She is certainly a traveling lady during a time of restricted transportation.

There is no truth in the rumor that a pair of scales had to be secured from the WAC barracks at Camp Croft to weigh Hubert Davidson when he reported for examination last week. The "heavyweight" tipped the scales at 65 pounds.

Control Disease In Home Garden
The use of disease resistant varieties of vegetables, and treatment, and garden sanitation are three practical methods of controlling disease in the home garden, says Howard E. Garvie, Extension plant pathologist, and D. E. Ellis, assistant plant pathologist of the Experiment Station, both of State College.
In treating small quantities of soil, they recommended that a corner of the packet be torn off and a "pinch" of dust be added to the soil, shaking them so as to give a thin coating of dust. Care should be exercised in handling the materials because some of them are poisonous.
The chief materials recommended for the simple dust treatments are Arsenic, Cuprochalcite, Sulfonol, Spergon, and zinc oxide. Growers should write the Agricultural Editor, State College, Raleigh, for a free copy of Extension Circular No. 272 which contains a vegetable seed treatment chart.
Do not set weak plants or those that show any signs of disease in a warning from the pathologists. They also suggest a rotation of the garden if, if possible, as a means of reducing the chances of getting diseases that may live over in the soil or come from old, diseased plants.

They also warn against the use of contaminated manure, fertilizer, or plants from infected seed beds or fields.
"By following certain steps and inexpensive practices, as outlined in Circular No. 272, a large percentage of the trouble and losses from vegetable diseases may be reduced," the pathologists say.
