Their Needs Over There May Delay Your Getting Telephone Service Over Here

BECAUSE metals and other communication materials are so badly needed in war, it is becoming more and more difficult for the telephone company to fill service requests. In fact, facilities are now insufficient to meet the demands for service. So unless you qualify as an essential user — one whose telephone usage is directly essential to defense or the health, welfare or security of the community as a whole — we regret that you may experience delay in getting service.

When facilities are available, they must be employed first for essential users. Then, from any facilities remaining, others will be served in their regular order. We will be glad to take your application for service and notify you when facilities become available.

Everything possible is being done to lessen the effect of wartime restrictions on telephone service. And we look forward to the time when materials will be available and we can again furnish the service you want when you want it.

COUGHING
Night Coughing

When a child coughs at night, it is often a sign of a cold or a more serious condition. The child's throat is irritated and the coughing can be very distressing. It is important to get the child's cough under control as soon as possible.

There are many ways to help a child with a cough. One of the best is to use a cough syrup that is specifically designed for children. This syrup can help to soothe the throat and break up the mucus that is causing the cough. It can also help to reduce the frequency and severity of the coughing fits.

It is important to choose a cough syrup that is safe and effective. Look for a syrup that is made with natural ingredients and that has been tested and approved by a reputable medical organization. This will ensure that the child is getting the best possible care for their cough.
