A GREATER MAN

I've longed wished that I could be
A man with greater things to do,
I'd go and work for men I know,
And live my life for you.
If I could be this greater man,
The man I crave so much to be,
I'd go and help in a greater way
To set the world all free.
If I could be this greater man,
I'd go and talk to men I know,
They'd hear my voice when I spoke
Wherever I would go.
If I could be this greater man,
And be a captain of the crew,
I'd travel the land from East to West
And greater things I'd do.
But as I am you can see
I'm one of many of the clan,
But let me live that I may help
The onward march of man.

A CLARION CALL

There are some things that, as Americans, we must labor to get back—the habits of thrift and self-denial, the courage to face new adventures, the serene faith that was ours in simpler creeds and in established traditions, the patriotism that puts America first, the old codes of business honor and private decency; the unshaken and unshakable belief that was ours in American institutions and American ideals must be renewed.
We must return to Americanism again, to the old, sturdy, clean upstanding Americanism of the founders, the Americanism that faced disaster unafraid, that went forward with faith and flag, and that built about the American home and the American family the faith of God, and in our institutions that have raised this glorious land of ours into a place of leadership among the nations of the world—the very Americanism that the subverters would try to make us believe is as antithetical as the stagecoach.—National Republic Magazine.

THE COMMON MAN

Christianity began among the lower strata of society. At first not many rich or noble were found in the Christian ranks. But the Christian religion is not unique in this respect. The great social revolutions have generally been cradled in slums. Civilization is deeply indebted to early studies and unknown mothers held a heavy account against the world.
No ignorance is quite so stupid as that which discounts the common man and that covets the hidden capacities of the common people. The finest thing said of Jesus as a teacher was that the common people heard him gladly.
The greatest shortightedness of the Christian church has been its disposition to get away from the common people. Every church in every age is at this point beset with snares.—N. C. Christian Advocate.

APPEARANCE

Do not judge from mere appearances; for the light laughter that bubbles on the lip often mingles over the depths of sadness, and the serious look may be the sober veil that covers a divine peace and joy. The bosom can ache beneath diamond branches; and many a little heart dances under coarse wool.—Chaplain.

NEWS AND TALK

Raymond E. Lynch

I don't like Mr. George Hart, one of Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Hart's, in the Post Office Monday afternoon and asked him how he liked his new baby brother at home. He answered, after thinking a little bit, "He's not at home, he's in the hospital."

I had a most enjoyable time back side Sunday afternoon outside Byron Foster's prize-winning walking horse, Strolling Major. It was a beautiful afternoon for riding and just about everyone who had a horse or could borrow one was out for a glass of afternoon. We met Mrs. Logan, "Fanny" Miller, and Norman Miller. Later we met a lady and man riding two nice horses and on down the road a little piece we ran up on Tom Fulton, H. V. Ballard, John Conroy. After chatting with them for a while we continued our ride back towards town and met Arthur Henson and his niece, Betty Wolf, heading out to enjoy the view of the countryside from the back of a horse. Just before we got back to the Foster stables we met Leo Jenkins out on his horse for a ride.

While out to see Mr. R. C. Hooper at the Selway Process Co. Monday morning I was greatly impressed with the beautiful view which is seen from his office window. It is without a doubt one of the most beautiful scenes anywhere.

The Community War Fund Drive begins Monday morning and every citizen of Kings Mountain should be happy to have an opportunity to contribute to so many worthy causes at one time. Chairman Byron Foster and his committee are expecting to finish up the drive on time, so let's back them up.

Postmaster W. E. Stobly informs me that the post office did a record-breaking business Saturday and Sunday with the gifts to service men overseas. More packages were handled in the two day period than any other two days in the history of the local post office. G. W. Ryan and his personnel and R. G. and W. D. Baker of Baker Grocery have the thanks of a great number of families of service men for their aid in wrapping packages. It would have made you feel good to see the large volume of Christmas packages that left Kings Mountain for the fighting men of the East Town in the State. Let's hope and pray that this will be the last Christmas the boys will have to receive their gifts away from home.

Don Patterson stopped me on the street the other day to correct his subscription. He wanted to know if I had a check but I contained only a one dollar bill, the other was a note of larger denomination, so he reached in his other back pocket and pulled out another wallet, just like the first one except it contained a number of ones. I am glad to hear we have a man who does not carry all his "eggs" in one basket.

Allen Captives $70,150 Made

LONDON, Oct. 27.—Allied armies have captured at least $70,150 prisoners since D-Day, with 400,100 of them caged by the four American armies in the field.

Latest official totals on the campaign since June 6:
U. S. First Army	169,730
U. S. Third Army	96,125
U. S. Seventh Army	80,000
U. S. Ninth Army	19,312
British Second Army	75,681
Canadian First Army	72,392

Total $70,150
Two other armies are in the field but their prisoners have not been announced. These are the first airborne army in Holland and the French first army before the Belfort gap. All totals except that of the U. S. first army are several days behind the actual count.

The prisoner totals are for the western front only.

Admission is a very short-lived passion that decays as growing familiarity with its object gives it still to be fed with fresh discoveries and kept alive by perpetual miracle rington up to its view.—Zellner.

As agnostic is a man who doesn't know whether there is a God or not, doesn't know whether he has a soul or not, doesn't know whether there is a future life or not, doesn't believe that any one knows any more about these matters than he does, and thinks it a waste of time to try to find out.—Pears.

The common dream of the Navy Bluejackets, to get "a little farm and raise chickens" after the war is over, may be topped by WAVES now on duty training pigeons to carry messages. The Navy women will probably want to retire to a squab farm.

MEMPHIS NEWS

By Mrs. Jessie G. Costner

Mr. Edward Watson of Winston-Salem spent the week-end with Mr. Dan Wingo.

Rev. D. A. Costner received very interesting letter from Pvt. David E. Betty. He stated that he had won three medals and that he had served in North Africa, on an island of the Mediterranean, and is now serving in Italy. He is forever of Kings Mountain.

Mrs. Maggie Fulton and daughter, John Ida, returned from New York Sunday night after visiting her son, Mr. John L. Fulton.

The Singing Convention was held at the Ebenezer Baptist Church. Rev. M. J. Williams was in charge of the preaching services. Twelve choirs participated in singing. First second and third prizes were awarded to three different classes that raised the highest amount of money. They were: Ebenezer, first prize; Vestibule, second prize; and Mountain Chapel Prayer Union. Their singing was enjoyed by everyone.
