

KEEP DAIRY COWS IN GOOD QUARTERS

Dairy units should be protected from sudden changes of temperature during the winter and given quarters in which they can keep themselves clean, says A. C. Kimrey, Extension Director for the State College Extension Service.

ed in a wide shed, open to the south and supplied with plenty of hay racks. A good supply of such bedding as grain straw or shredded corn cobs should be used at all times to keep the floor dry.

Many good dairymen believe that cows produce better when housed separately in a lairage barn or shed, especially when they are "laid up." Kimrey suggests that if

WITH THE BOYS IN SERVICE

Dear Mr. Lynch:

Just a line to let you know that my address has been changed and that I received my latest issue sometime in August.

By the way, I have only received four papers since I have been overseas. I know it is no fault of yours as I have changed of address so often that it is hard for mail to keep up with me.

I noticed in the paper where some of the boys are getting furlough and I am looking forward to the day I can get one of them myself.

As you know I have been overseas for quite some time and have seen quite a bit of action.

I hope as you all do that this war will be over real soon so that I can return to the best little city in the States.

Tell all the folks hello and keep up the good work and we will all be home soon. Truly yours,

Russell Cobb.

Cows are fastened, that they be allowed plenty of room for comfort. Deep, dry bedding is essential for comfort," he says, "and it is also a distinct aid in preventing udder troubles.

Calves should have a barn to themselves. It should be so constructed that each baby calf will have a separate stall. When the calves, grow older, they may be placed together and thus save space in the barn.

"This kind of calf-barn arrangement enables the calves to grow out much better and develop into better producers when they come into milk," Kimrey says.

As to general arrangements, he suggests that all dairy barns be planned and constructed so as to provide a maximum of cleanliness, comfort, and quietness for the cows.

"Three things will pay good dividends in the milk parlour: other things being equal," Kimrey explains.

Trees Grow Fast

Soil and climate conditions in the Northwest are so suited to growing trees that young trees often add as much as six feet to their stature in one year.

Dear Mr. Lynch:

Just a few lines to let the folks at home hear from a crew-gunner from Kings Mountain, the best little city in the U. S. A.

This leaves me fine. Hope all at home the same. Mr. Lynch, my brother left a few weeks ago for the Navy, if you can get his address for me, I sure would appreciate it for it seems like I can't get in touch with him.

I would like to say hello to all of my friends, and hello to my wife, and kiss all my sisters and my mother.

I sure would like to hear from any one at home.

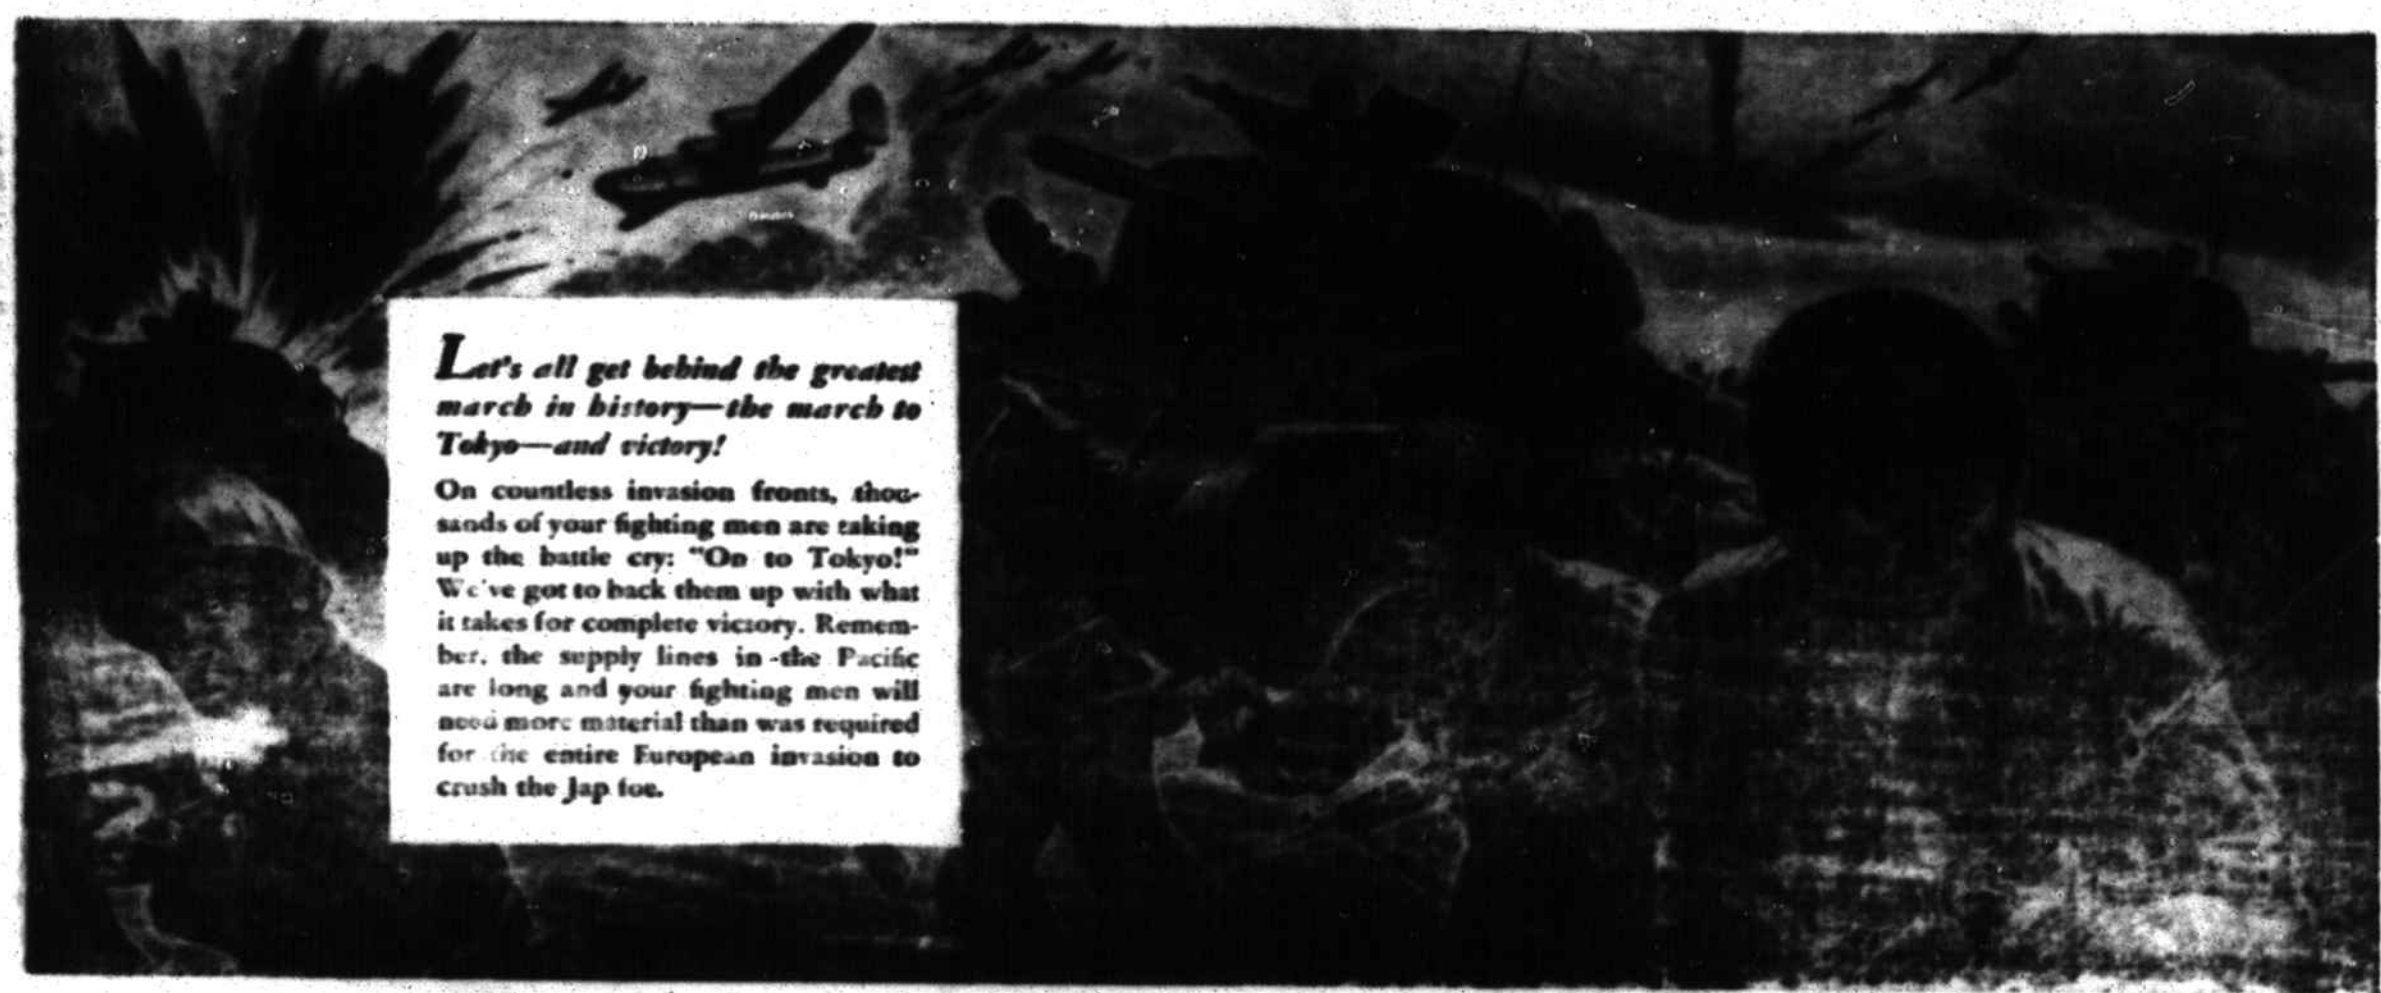

Well, I will be coming home in three more weeks for 15 days. I sure will be glad to get home for a rest and see my people for a while. My wife and mother left here about a week ago I sure did hate to see them leave for I was so glad to see them. Well, I will win my Silver Wings in two more weeks, will get them on Saturday, and leave for home on Tuesday. So if nothing happens I will get home in four weeks and I sure will be proud to wear my Silver Wings over my heart, let every one know I am a gunner in the best Air Force in the world and it will take a lot more of the men at home to get this job over with. A lot of people at home seem to think it is all about over and are laying down on the job, but it is not over by a lot yet, and a lot more men will come through what we have before it is over.

It is hard to say it is not about over but it is not and won't be for sometime to come.

Well, I'll say good night to all for it is late and I got to study my books yet for I have more books than I had in school at 13. So I will say, Keep this up, we will keep 'Em FLYING, Yours truly,

ON TO TOKYO!

Let's all get behind the greatest march in history—the march to Tokyo—and victory!

On countless invasion fronts, thousands of your fighting men are taking up the battle cry: "On to Tokyo!" We've got to back them up with what it takes for complete victory. Remember, the supply lines in the Pacific are long and your fighting men will need more material than was required for the entire European invasion to crush the Jap foe.

Let's Echo that cry with BONDS!

Our boys won't quit until they've reached their goal. Let's not stop buying Bonds until we've reached ours! In this 6th War Loan Drive, the Nation's goal is $14 billions ... our individual job is to buy at least an extra $100 Bond ... another and then another ... let's keep on going ... let's keep on buying ... let's keep on saying it with Bonds... "On to Tokyo!"

ALLOW PASTURES TO REST DURING WINTER

Pasture grasses need to store up food during the winter months so as to make a quick start next spring and therefore all livestock should now be removed from permanent pastures, says Dr. R. L. Lovvorn, forage-crop agronomist of the Agricultural Experiment Station at State College.

Alfalfa needs to go into winter quarters with several inches of growth to produce best yields. For the same reason, grasses need protection and a chance for development that will bring quick growth in the spring.

"Grasses which have been protected by brush and litter during the winter, make the quickest growth in the spring and provide the most grazing," according to Lovvorn.

He points out that cattle cause a large part of physical damage to the pastures during the winter and that it takes quite some time in the spring for the grasses to recover from this bad treatment and put out new growth.

"Cattle should be removed from the pasture about the time of the first frost," Lovvorn says. "If this is done, the grass can build up a winter reserve of food that will enable it to bring earlier grazing in the spring and also more grazing. The same principle is involved as the removal of cattle from the pasture during long, dry periods during the summer. Permanent pastures should rest periods for best production."
