Grand Ole Opry Will Show Here July 4th

Jamup and Honey, radio's funniest blackface comedians and their WSM Grand Ole Opry tent show, with Curly Fox and Texas Ruby and their Foxhunters and Uncle Dave Macon, grand old man of the Opry, are coming to Kings Mountain on Wednesday, July 4th for one performance on the Baker lot on King street. The show starts at dark.

This mobile unit of the famed folk music radio show which originates in Nashville, Tenn., has the sanction of the Office of Defense Transportation. The show will be broadcast on the radio.

on tour in the South. Jamup and Honey themselves (Bunny Biggs and Honey Wilda,) have been cutting capers on the Grand Ole Opry for 14 years. In this season's show, they sing several of their old hit songs such as "What Are Little Boys and Girls Made Of?" and "The Used Car Blues," plus several new ones.

The burnt cork comies also spent several weeks last winter perfecting new humor routines which are sending spectators into stitches of laughter during the current season.

Curly Fox and Texas Ruby and their Foxhunters, a fine string band, rejoined the WSM Grand Ole Opry several months ago after a three-year absence. Texas Ruby, reared on a ranch near Fort Worth, Texas, is known from coast to coast as "Radio's Original Wodelling Cowgirl," while her tall, slender partner, a Tennessean, is one of the nation's outstanding old-time fiddlers.
