Gibson Has Flown Over 1,000 Hours

Fifth Air Force, Philippine Islands. — Technical Sergeant James C. Gibson has completed his overseas assignment after 21 months of combat flying with a Fifth Air Force Troop Carrier Group. His father, R. W. Gibson resides on Cleveland Avenue.

An aerial engineer on both Douglas and Curtiss transports, T-Sgt. Gibson has flown on 115 combat missions and is credited with more than 1075 hours flying over New Guinea, Netherlands East Indies, and the Philippine Islands.

With the forward march of the American forces in the SWPA, T-Sgt. Gibson, like all Troop Carrier crew members, has ignored the risks of adverse weather, expected enemy action and incomplete airstrips to carry troops and fighting materials to the front lines and from there evacuate the wounded.

For meritorious achievements while participating in sustained operational flight missions, he has been awarded the Air Medal and two Oak-Leaf Clusters.

SINCE 1899....

On July 1, 1899, Plonk, Kiser and Company opened for business.

There were three clerks, and the goods on the shelves were what we now know as staples.

Kings Mountain was really small then, with only a few other business firms, a hotel, a railroad depot in the heart of the town, and a few manufacturing plants.

Mountain street, like the others, was unpaved, and when it rained it almost literally became "knee-deep" in mud.

Fat-back meat was five cents per pound, and calico (there were no prints) was the big item for women's dresses. You could get a month's board for $7.50. White shirting was five cents a yard too.

The 46 Years

In the 46 years since this firm was opened, much has changed in Kings Mountain. The little crossroads town at the turn of the century has become a thriving city, with much industry and business.

During these years, we have seen one war successfully concluded, a ravaging depression, and another war.

While many of our customers today are those who visited us in 1899, the majority of them are sons and daughters and grandchildren of those who first did their buying at Plonk's.

As we enter our 47th year, we wish to state our appreciation to those who have made our business successful, and those who have been our friends through good times and bad, war and peace, happiness and sorrow.

And as we state our appreciation for the kindnesses of the past, let us say that we are looking forward to the future of Kings Mountain as a retail business which specializes in good merchandise and fair prices.
