Former Citizen's Son Praises Medics Work

The following story from a recent edition of the Charlotte Observer is being reprinted as of local interest to Herald readers.

Sgt. Norman Ross, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Ross of Bessemer City is a relative of a number of Kings Mountain citizens. His mother is the former Miss Blanche McGill of this city. He is a grandson of the late Mr. and Mrs. T. J. McGill.

The story follows:
One of the things that added most to the morale of American soldiers under fire was the knowledge that, if wounded, the medics would get them back to a hospital station no matter how much "fire and brimstone" they had to go through to do it, according to Sgt. Norman Ross, back in Charlotte yesterday from long duty in the Pacific theater.

Sergeant Ross, a member of the 158th Regimental Combat team, saw most of his duty in evacuation hospitals just behind the front lines on Finnschaven, Sarmi, Nookfor and Luzon. It was to his hospital that the wounded in his area were first brought. After treatment there they were rushed by plane to base hospitals, and from the base hospitals the most seriously injured were sent to the States.

"When a man went into battle," said Sergeant Ross, "he could rest assured that, if he were hit, the medics would reach him. Which meant that he would soon be receiving the best medical treatment in the world. To give an example, we once lost 12 medics trying to bring one wounded soldier through a field of fire to our evacuation hospital. These 12 did not die in vain, for their courage lent added courage to the troops in battle and was a material factor in our winning the war."

JAPS INEFFICIENT

In contrast, the Japs had very poor field medical service, Sergeant Ross said. And to this fact was attributed a great deal of the enemy's ultimate demoralization on the battlefield. Where the Japs would let their wounded die on the field, the American medics would dash into the hottest sectors of the battle in order to rush the wounded back to station hospitals where prompt and efficient treatment saved thousands of lives.

Sergeant Ross' outfit was sent to Japan after the war ended. They remained there for two and a half months, taking care of soldiers who got sick.

Sergeant Ross wears the Purple Heart for wounds received in a line of duty. He also wears the Asiatic-Pacific ribbon with three bronze stars, the Philippines Liberation ribbon, Good Conduct medal and Victory medal.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Ross of Bessemer City. Before entering the service more than three years ago he was connected with the Blue Ribbon Sales company of Charlotte, now known as Best Brands, Inc.

Cotton Crop Set At 430,000 Bales

RALEIGH, Dec. 22.—The December cotton report release by the Federal State Crop Reporting Service points to a 1945 crop of 430,000 bales for North Carolina.

This is 89 percent of the 710,000 bales produced last year and is 30 per cent smaller than the 10-year average of 604,000 bales, according to Clyde Willis, State Agriculture Department statistician. He said that approximately 85 percent, or 367,000 bales, of the crop has been ginned.

The yields of lint cotton per acre is computed at 371 pounds—83 pounds less per acre than the all-time record yield of 454 pounds harvested in 1944, but 45 pounds per acre higher than the 10-year average of 326 pounds per acre.

The acreage of cotton for harvest in North Carolina from this year's crop, estimated at 550,000 acres, is less than for any year since 1932—only 74 per cent of the 750,000 acres harvested last year and 63 per cent of the 10-year average of 887,000 acres.

Willis said that abandonment of the 1945 crop is about 1.5 per cent of the 563,000 acres of cotton in cultivation on July 1.

Texas, devoting 6,237,000 acres to cotton this season, ranks first with position, and South Carolina, with his crop in the nation, and in second place is Mississippi with 2,290,000 acres.
