Mountaineers Scrap Lenoir There Friday

In spite of the Republican tide that swept Democrats out of control of Congress in Tuesday's general elections, and in spite of a recent stir-up by county political circles Cleveland voters followed the usual line and voted with by voting quite strongly for the Democrats.

Kings Mountain voters did not alter the pattern, turning majorities for all Democratic candidates in a light vote.

One Republican was elected to a township office, L. W. Sellars, of Waco, defeating C. L. Barrett for constable.

Total vote in the two Kings Mountain precincts was 688, only around Democratic primary.

It was an off-year election, with no presidential or gubernatorial battles to decide, and the vote was much lower than the 1,687 cast in 1944.

The election passed very quietly in the city, with most folks content either to "let George do it," or merely vote. One man was passing out election cards at the City Hall booth, and as far as was noted, he was the only poll worker.
