cutwork cloth, was centered with an exquisite crystal bowl filled with white tulips, roses and narcissi. Tall white candles in crystal holders were placed at either end of the centerpiece. A large crystal tray held a nosegay for each guest. The nosegays were created from white carnations and sprigs of feathery acacia. Narrow streamers of white satin ribbon cascaded from the bow which held the flowers together and at the end of each streamer was a dainty heart. Inscribed on one of these hearts was the message "Betty and Howie," and on another "March 27."

Ice cream, molded in traditional bridal colors, and individual cakes decorated with lilies-of-the-valley were served to the twenty guests.
