Experiment Station Releases Bulletin

"Biology and Control of the Pickleworm" is the title of a technical bulletin just published by the North Carolina Agricultural Experiment Station.
 Dr. B. B. Fulton, professor of entomology at the Station and author of the bulletin, says that there are other pests which limit the production of the cucurbit crops. But none appear as regularly year after year as the pickleworm. The pest has an unusual ability to spread northward each year, though it kills out during the winter. It also increases in numbers at a very rapid rate during hot weather.

The first larvae of the pest usually appear from July 6 to 18 in the Raleigh area, the author states. But in the west and north, it's usually a little later. Cryolite dust has proved to be the best insecticide of the many materials which have been tested. Dusting should start immediately after the first pickleworms are found. A weekly dusting is satisfactory, but a shorter interval gives better control, especially in rainy weather.
 If the crops are picked just before dusting, Dr. Fulton finds that the residue is not serious, except perhaps on small cucumbers. The residue is easily removed by rain or by washing. Early crops usually escape injury. Fall crops may escape for a time if not early crops are produced nearby.

Copies of the bulletin, which is entitled "Biology and Control of the Pickleworm," are available to the public free on request. Write to the Agricultural Editor at North Carolina State College, Raleigh, and ask for a copy of Technical Bulletin No. 85.

Standards For Seed Potatoes Improved

RALEIGH. — The Seed Potato Law enacted by the 1947 legislature already is having a very desirable effect, according to Commissioner of Agriculture W. Kerr Scott.
 This law requires that all Irish potatoes and sweet potatoes sold, offered for sale or shipped into this state for propagation purposes shall conform to the standards of "certified" and "U. S. No. 1" potatoes. Violation of the law is made a misdemeanor, punishable by fine or imprisonment, or both.
 "It has been necessary in a few instances," Commissioner Scott said "to issue 'stop sale' orders to prevent the sale of seed potatoes failing to meet these standards. Our growers are paying for good seed potatoes and they are entitled to what they pay for. It is our intention to see that they get them, as the law provides."
 When inferior seed potatoes are found by inspectors, the Agriculture Commissioner added, the shipper or dealer is given the privilege of regrading them in order that those complying with the specified standards may be sold as seed potatoes, or he is given an opportunity to sell the potatoes for eating purposes.
 In order that undesirable eggs, such as those containing blood spots, rots, and bloody whites, may not find their way to select markets, it is necessary that eggs be candled.
