

Navy Testing Motion Stabilizer For Ships

NAVAL BASE, Charleston, S. C.—A new ship stabilization system designed to reduce the rolling motion of vessels by 80 percent is being readied for extensive sea tests at the Naval Shipyard, Norfolk, Va., according to information received by the Headquarters Sixth Naval District.

Naval ordancemen and engineers point out that the accuracy of ship-board guns would be greatly improved by the more stable firing platform offered by a successful stabilizer. Aircraft carrier flight operations would be further simplified, and the loading and unloading of cargo and troops in open seaways, with a vessel at anchor, would be expedited. Operating on a counter-balance principle, the new stabilizing system consists of two pairs of large tanks mounted on opposite sides of the ship. The bottoms of the tanks, each half filled with ballast, are connected athwartships by transfer ducts. Powerful, electronically controlled impellers automatically pump water back and forth at a rapid rate to counter balance the ship's rolling motion. Actually the motion is corrected just as it commences.

Cancer killed 182,000 Americans in 1946, 189,000 in 1947, and an estimated 195,500 will die of cancer in 1949.

The General Sherman tree in Sequoia National park is estimated to be 3,500 years old.

A recent check of Naval aircraft engines "canned" at the end of the war showed them to be in perfect condition.
