University Press Is To Publish Blythe Biography Of W. H. Belk

CHAPEL HILL — The story of the growth of a small country store into a vast mercantile empire of almost 300 stores in a dozen states and the genius behind that growth, W. H. Belk of Charlotte, is told in lively fashion in a volume to be published late in the spring by the University of North Carolina press, Lambert Davis, director of the press, announced here today.

The book tentatively titled "William Henry Belk: Merchant of the South," was written by Legett Blythe, for years a member of the staff of The Charlotte Observer and author of several books and the recent drama produced in Charlotte, "Shout Freedom!"

Blythe's most recent book, also published by the University of North Carolina press, was "Bold Gallian," a novel of the time of Christ which has sold three large printings in the regular trade edition and as a selection of the Peoples Book club has attained an estimated nationwide distribution of about 200,000.

The coming volume, which will be one of the principal titles on the Press' spring list, tells in entertaining fashion the story of Belk's rise from an orphaned boy whose father was killed during the raid of Sherman's men into the Lancaster district of South Carolina in the closing days of the War Between the States to one of the great merchants of the nation.

It is at the same time the story of the Belk empire itself, its remarkable development from a very modest beginning in a small store in Monroe more than a half century ago, its unique manner of organization and operation, and the policies under which various stores within the great organization carry on their business.

The Press is planning a first edition of approximately 25,000 copies.

Patterson Grove News & Comments

By Mrs. Thurman Seism

What is a home? Not walls nor fine furnishings, but it is love built around a Godly Mother. Our hearts were saddened by the passing of a dear one Friday. She was known by many and loved by all. She loved and served her family and community and she loved and served her Lord. She was always concerned about people who weren't Christians. Her pastime, because of her eyes, was listening to the radio. Her favorites were religious programs. Rev. J. A. Brock and Rev. Earl Armstrong were her "regulars." Here is a poem I have composed dedicated to her:

The beauty has faded from her cheek,

The glow of youth has passed;
Her body is growing very weak
God's Angels have come at last
The eyes are growing weak and tired,

Her voice is slowly too,
Soon I shall go said Mother dear,
Where lives are made anew,
The golden chain will soon be loosed,

The silver cord shall break;
And then the soul back to God,
It's happy return shall take,
I'm going home to live with Jesus,

She often used to say,
She'll be with Jesus forever there
Who is her Christ and King,
Remember how she loved us,
Through days and years gone by
She taught us that we might live
For God, and meet her in the sky;

Then may her teaching, prayer
and toil be crowned with rich reward,
When we shall meet in glory above,

Father Of Local Woman Passes

Funeral services for William Monroe Rogers, father of Mrs. Mildred Bell of Kings Mountain, were held Wednesday afternoon at McAdenville Wesleyan Methodist church, with the pastor, Rev. David Argo, conducting, assisted by Rev. A. A. Padgett, pastor of East Gastonia Church of God.

Burial was in Hollywood cemetery at Gastonia.

Mr. Rogers was 66. He had been seriously ill for a week before his death.

A native of Haywood county, Mr. Rogers had lived in McAdenville for the past four years.

Also surviving are his wife, Mrs. Millie Hawkins Rogers; three sons, Hansel of Ranlo, Jennings of Fontana Dam, and Robert Rogers of Cherokee; four daughters, Mrs. Hazel Jolly of Ellenboro, Mrs. Helen Short of North Belmont, Mrs. Beatrice Brandon of Ranlo, and Mrs. Faye McMahon of Lowell; and 10 grandchildren.

To live with Christ our Lord,
We'll sing the songs with Saints up there,
And walk on streets of gold,
We shall be forever young and fair,
In the land where we'll never grow old.

The Gutenberg Bible first book printed with movable type, was given the appearance of a hand-copied manuscript by the printers so that their invention would not be discovered.
