

There are now more than 11,000 frozen food locker plants in the United States. The number of such plants doubled between mid summer, 1945, and January 1 of this year.

Trucking is a tough job and requires tough equipment to stand up. That's why nickel alloy steels are used for transmissions and other important parts of trucks which are subjected to severe shock and constant hard wear.

During the past year, platinum found extensive use in the production of small glow plugs for starting miniature diesel engines, which are made in surprisingly large quantities for use in model aircraft.

Tips On Preventing Radiator Rust Given

DETROIT. — Prevention of rust and corrosion in automobile cooling systems is important for continued good service of the car. E. L. Harrig, manager of the Chevrolet service and mechanical department, said.

"Judging from the limited use of corrosion inhibitors with water it is apparent that many motorists do not realize the seriousness of this problem," Harrig said. "In the winter, the standard antifreeze products contain inhibitors which prevent corrosion. But the problem is even more serious in warm weather or in southern climates because of higher operating temperatures."

Oxygen from the air in the cooling system is the most serious cause of corrosion. Harrig cited other causes as presence of corrosive mineral salts in the water, exhaust-gas leakage into the cooling system, use of unneutralized acid — or alkaline-cleaner solutions and the use of certain acid-containing stop-leak preparations.

Radiators should be flushed and cleaned before use of antifreeze or corrosion-inhibitor solutions. In cold climates, the inhibitor in the anti-freeze solution is adequate and should not be mixed with other inhibitors. In spring the system should be drained and flushed, and an inhibitor added for summer. However, if the permanent-type anti-freeze (ethylene glycol) is used, it may be left in the cooling system during the summer.

In warmer-climates, the cooling system should be flushed and cleaned every spring and fall, and a fresh filling of a good corrosion inhibitor added.
