MORE and BETTER COTTON

As a cotton planter, you can expect four-way benefits from one simple operation you can perform on your own farm, or have done for you.

- 1. Control of most of the seed rot or decay that reduces your stands before the seeds can sprout. 2. Control of seedling blight caused by bacteria in your soil or seeds that attack the tender seedlings. 3. Control of anthracnose or pink boll disease, another germ-caused ailment that results in smaller crops of poor-grade, spotty cotton. 4. Control of bacterial blight or angular leaf spot that kills your cotton plants or stunts their growth.

In Korea and Japan, Red Cross societies of six countries have been carrying on operations in behalf of the armed forces and civilian war refugees. The League of Red Cross Societies in co-ordinating the work of the American, Australian, Philippine, Japanese, Swedish, and Korean Red Cross societies, and also a delegation representing the International Red Cross.

In the past year the American Red Cross gave approximately $1,000,000 in material aid to 48 countries. Examples are diagnostic equipment bought for five children's clinics in Italy, the complete equipping of Red Cross sewing rooms in Austria and Germany where clothing is made for the destitute, and providing technical equipment for the Finnish Red Cross blood program.
