John Harden, Burlington Mill Public Relations Man, Speaks To Lions Here

"Companies, like individuals, can never have too many friends," John Harden, vice-president of Burlington Mills Corporation, told members of the Kings Mountain Lions club Tuesday night, March 13.

Mr. Harden, in charge of Burlington's public relations, made an interesting, witty and informative address, in which he outlined the functions of a public relations organization and emphasized the need for such a program in all types of business, whether larger or small.

"Business and industry have been gradually awakening to the need for such a program," Mr. Harden declared. "They are learning that it is good business to have the good will of their employees, their neighbors and the community in which they live. Our primary aim at Burlington Mills is to create a spirit of understanding in any community in which we operate."

The results of a successful public relations program are many, he said, listing a few benefits as top-grade employees, potential stockholders, and more customers.

"Business is fast re-learning the Golden Rule. It is not only good religion, it is good business," he declared.

"In public relations," he said, "we consider that character is the tree, and reputation its shadow. We can do nothing about the tree, for that is formed over the years. However, we can do something about the shadow. Every firm or individual has its troubles of one kind or other, but there is no point in shouting them to the world. There is every good reason for putting one's best foot forward."

A VITAL PART OF GARLAND'S PLATFORM

If the citizens of Kings Mountain want a clean, respectable city and administration, they can accomplish this at the polls on May 8th.

The accomplishments of the past administration are a matter of Record—what they stood for and what they upheld.

If I am elected Mayor, with the board members cooperation untold good can be accomplished. Starting first with a good housecleaning in the Police Department, which the present administration fought so hard to retain. Next in line would be the Fire Department. Last, but not least, the suspended sentences handed out so freely to drunks would cease. Instead they would be placed on the illicit liquor runner and dealer.

In other words the Big Time Operations and Racketeering will come to an end, for without the protection of the law they cannot survive.

Garland E. Still,
CANDIDATE FOR MAYOR.

P. S.—This can only be accomplished by the careful selection of Board members with the same high ideals.
