Pressly's Entertain Officers At Dinner

Rev. and Mrs. W. L. Pressly were hosts to the Elders and Deacons of the A. R. P. church Monday night entertaining with a turkey dinner.

In the living room a large arrangement of magnolia leaves, a modalia figurine with an all white arrangement were used in decorations.

The dining table was overlaid with a beautiful cloth which fell diagonally across one end of the diagonally across one end of the table was a large mound of daffodils, narcissus and acacia. Extending from under the flowers were yellow satin ribbon streamers. A companion piece on the side table carrying out the yellow color scheme was a large arrangement of mixed citrus fruit with yellow corn with the shucks peeled part of the way back. A turkey dinner and dessert course was served buffet style.

Guests reassembled in the living room where games and contests were the entertaining feature. The Presslys had worked out a skit using the names of each guest which caused much merriment.

After the light part of the entertainment, Rev. Pressly in a few well chosen words thanked the Elders and Deacons for their hearty co-operation during the past year, closing his remarks with prayer.

Paper Features Patrick's Unit

The Marine Corps' Second Armored Amphibian Tank Battalion, of which Capt. H. Lawrence Patrick, of Kings Mountain, is adjutant, was featured in a recent edition of the Force Troops Bulletin.

The feature story cites the history of the battalion, which first saw action as an experimental unit in the invasion of Saipan in 1944, proved its value as an invasion unit, and fought through other major engagements of the Pacific. The battalion was reactivated on October 1, 1950.

Capt. Patrick, son of Rev. and Mrs. P. D. Patrick and husband of the former Miss Mary Helen Hambricht, is pictured along with the five other members of the battalion staff. The caption over the picture is "The Big Six."

The story accompanying the picture follows: "June 1944: The Pacific spreading wide and dark around a 2nd Marine Division convoy, blacked out save for the fluorescent wakes of the ships. The convoy edges slowly down the Western shore of Saipan. . . On the dawn of D-Day six U. S. battleships form around the landing beaches and open up—from pom-pom to sixteen inchers. The huge mounds of the LST's open, and a hideous new weapon crawls down into the water—the 'armored pig' or the amphibian tank, looking like a lusty cross between a submarine, a tank, and a bloated hippopotamus. Ahead of the amtracks, and amtracks, ahead of everything but planes and shells, the pigs begin to grind toward the beaches, their 75mm. howitzers firing with the roll of the waves. The infantry is close behind in amtracks. The tanks rear up on the reef, growl and shake, and then stumble on, while the Jap anti-boat shells explode white water all around them. The 'pigs' slam shells into the beach, bunkers and move on into the underbrush to grapple with Jap tanks and prevent them from hitting the infantry on the beaches. . . There on Saipan in 1944 in one engagement the amphibian tanks knocked out three Japanese tanks with out a loss to themselves. The new weapon had proven itself. The 2nd Armored Amphibian Tank Bn. had given the first wave new punch and was to do so again on Tinian.

"Now, armored amphibians are conceived as the spearhead in any Marine assault. This completely new weapon gives the first wave tank support and the solid punch that was lacking before. The LVT-A fires as it churns to the beach; it fires direct assault at the enemy holed up in bunkers; and moving inland, it fires artillery support until 105's are landed. If enemy tanks appear, it fights them too, although its armor is only "a little thicker than dungeerees" and it mounts only a 75mm.

Falls Interred Here On Tuesday

Interment of Harry Falls, Kings Mountain native and former Kings Mountain grocer, was made at Mountain Rest cemetery Tuesday afternoon at 2:30.

Mr. Falls was killed on February 25, when his pick-up truck crashed into a bridge abutment near Asheville.

Funeral services were held at Morris-Gearing Funeral Home in Asheville at 10:30 Tuesday morning.

The final rites had been delayed pending arrival of Lt. Harry Falls, Jr., from Frankfurt, Germany.

Among those attending the graveside rites here were three of the four surviving sons, including Lt. Falls, Miles Falls, of Dallas, Texas, and William Bird Falls, of Asheville, recently returned from duty in Korea, and his wife, Mrs. Annie Falls. A fourth son, Robert Falls, on army duty in California, was unable to attend the rites of his father.

Also attending the funeral were Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Treutel, Mrs. Elizabeth Bird Bradley and Mr. Bradley, all of Columbia, S. C.

Mr. Falls was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Billie Falls. At the time of his death, he was operating the Harry Falls Livermush Company in Shelby.

howitzer. The 'pigs' carry a six-man crew and can do 6 knots in the water and 25 mph on the land. They are propelled by track-paddles as are the LVT's discussed in an earlier article.

"After being placed on an inactive status in 1945, the 2nd Armored Amphibian Tank Bn. was re-activated 1 October 1950 with a complement of 14 officers and 59 men under the command of the then Lt. Col. S. L. Stephan. Now commanded by Lt. Col. M. C. Goodpasture, it has a complement of 28 officers and 365 enlisted men. Since activation the battalion has been under-going artillery, infantry, tank, and machine gun platoon training. The battalion is quite ready to scare something besides the intelligence out of an enemy. Everyday is Halloween when the weird armored 'pig' comes wallowing out of the hold of an LST."
