Applicant List For Top Revenue Job Insufficient

As sufficient competition has not developed, the closing date of the examination for Director of Internal Revenue for North Carolina, at Greensboro, has been extended until July 14, it was announced today by the Director of the Fourth U. S. Civil Service Region in Washington. The examination was originally announced on June 16.

The position of Director of Internal Revenue, which is to be filled through competitive examination under the merit system, replaces the position of Collector, which was filled by political appointment.

The Civil Service Commission requires that applicants for the new position show at least six years of "successful, extensive, and significant" administrative experience. Emphasis is placed on personal and official integrity, objectivity of judgement, leadership qualities, ability to interpret and apply laws and regulations, and ability to deal effectively with commercial organizations and the public.

Additional information concerning the examination is available at first and second-class post offices in North Carolina and at the Commission's Fourth Regional Office, Third Street and Jefferson Drive, S. W., Washington 25, D. C.

Farm Pond To Be Expanded

The Wildlife Resources Commission's farm pond program is due for expanded activity with the 1952-53 fiscal year, according to Clyde P. Patton, Executive Director. Although the Commission does not build or stock fish ponds, it gives expert technical advice on pond management. Beginning July 1 another specialist will be employed to help with the job of trouble-shooting on ponds that have become unbalanced in fish population or have been improperly stocked.

North Carolina has at least 9,000 farm ponds, with over 1,000 built and stocked during the last half of 1951.

Persons desiring technical assistance with their ponds may obtain it by contacting their local Soil Conservation Service office which will forward requests to the Wildlife Commission.

A pear crop of 168,000 bushels was estimated for North Carolina as of June 1. This compares with 154,000 bushels produced last year and 73,000 bushels in 1950.

There Are No "Minor" Injuries

Any cut, burn, or scratch—however slight it may seem to be is a potential source of painful infection. That is why every injury demands immediate treatment in accordance with accepted first aid methods. Clean the wound with an approved antiseptic. Bandage it with sterile gauze—never use a piece of rag because far from protecting against infection, an unsterile rag may actually introduce germs into the wound. Be prepared when injury strikes by keeping adequate supplies of first aid in your home and car. If a wound seems serious, get medical attention for it without delay.
