

Bessemer JC's To Get Charter

Charter night for the new Bessemer City Junior Chamber of Commerce will be held Monday night in Bessemer City according to announcement at regular meeting of Kings Mountain Jaycees at Masonic dining hall Tuesday night.

Kings Mountain Jaycees are being urged to attend the official opening meeting of the new Bessemer City chapter, organization of which was a local club project. The charter night meeting will be held at the Bessemer City Womens club building Monday at 7:30 p. m. Kings Mountain Jaycees desiring to attend were requested to make reservations with Wilson Griffin before noon on Friday.

Some 27 Jaycees were present at the meeting, with President Joe Hedden presiding. Paul Ware and Jim Blanton were guests of the club.

Mr. Hedden announced that the club had a roll of "Scotchlite" tape and urged the organization to join the state safety project. The tape is to be sold to motorists to be placed on auto bumpers as a safety device.

Dr. N. H. Reed issued Civil Defense volunteer registration cards to members present and urged all to take part in the program.

David Saunders announced a change in date for the club's black - face minstrel show. The show is now scheduled for the last week in January.

The "Rhythm Kings", an eight-member group of high school musicians presented the program. The group included Kelly Weaver, director; Clyde Morrow, tenor saxophone; Bill Sanders, second coronet; Gene Ellis, first coronet; Tim Gladden, drums; Bill Briggs, trombone; Charles Yawn, baritone; and Joe Davis, bass horn.

Boy Scout News

November 17, Troop Two of St. Matthew's Lutheran church, held its weekly meeting. The meeting was brought to order with the Scout oath and laws. After this we took good turns and dues, and then had a 20 minute Patrol meeting. Following this we had some games and the Assistant Scoutmaster had a few words with the boys telling them that

Keglers, Pin Boys Winners In Bowling

The Keglers downed the Independents and the Pin Boys bested the Alley Cats in Bowling League action Monday night at the Shelby Recreation center.

Arrowood's high set of 307 led the Pin Boys to a 19 pin victory over the Alley Cats. Ware had a 304 set for the losers, Morrison and Arrowood had a high line each of 112.

Brackett's 332 set topped the losers scoring in the Independents - Keglers contest, with Jones posting a 312 for the winners and Wilson rolling a high line of 118.

The Independent's loss was their fifth against five wins; the Alley Cats' their sixth against four wins and the Pin Boys their sixth against four wins.

It was the Keglers' seventh win over three losses.

The scores:

Alley Cats (1491)	Keglers (1497)
Bowling 270 Logan	278
Biser 280 Clark	269
Harrick 285 Jones	312
Ware 304 Kelly	264
Gambie 302 Wilson	303

MORE ABOUT Parsons

(Continued From Page One) 1909, with Duke Power Company, shortly after he was married to Miss Mattie Hunter, in Lincoln. He operated the Duke substation here, until tendered the city post by the administration of 1919, which included A. E. Cline, as mayor, Ed Barnes, W. S. Dilling, and W. P. Fulton as council members.

Mr. Parsons was somewhat reluctant to leave the Duke Company, and admits that he placed his acceptance figure higher than he thought the city would pay. A day later he was asked, "When can you go to work?"

Then the fun began. The city's finances were puny and only a few water customers were metered. But a friend was in the electric supply business and extended sufficient credit, on the Parsons signature, for a standing two-case meter order each month. Furnishing water to citizens called for extra duty, too, in those years. The water supply came from wells off Cherryville Road at what is now known as the "old water tank". To see that customers were supplied, Mr. Parsons had to roll out of bed at 4 a. m., go to the wells and start the pumps. His means of transportation were his feet, until he decided to try bicycle transportation. But that didn't work too well, and he dispensed with the bicycle.

In 1929, Mr. Parsons had the pleasure of superintending the opening of the modern water plant that serves the city today. In 1919, the number of city employees in the public works department was two, Mr. Parsons and Jim Able, his Negro helper. In 1921, Freeland Tidwell and C. L. Fulton joined the city force. In 1923, the main street power lines were moved behind the business establishments.

Generally speaking, Mr. Parsons has filled about every capacity in the public works field during his service to the city. He has clipped power lines near burning buildings, superintended the laying of sewer and water lines, the paving of streets, power installations, and served for many years as building, plumbing and electrical inspector.

Mr. and Mrs. Parsons have two children, a daughter, Mrs. Virginia Parsons Rosenthal, of Pleasantville, New York, and a son, Dr. Jack Parsons, of Lumberton. They have four grandchildren, three boys and a girl. They are members of First Presbyterian church.
