Labor Shortage Plagues Farmers

A six-point program to help farmers beat the labor shortage was suggested this week by specialists of the State College Agricultural Extension Service.

The specialists pointed out that the farm labor supply will not be as plentiful in 1953 as in 1952, since another 200,000 agricultural workers will go into industrial employment and the armed services also will take their quota of farm workers. Wages paid to farm workers are up 5 to 10 per cent over a year ago and will be moderately higher in 1953 than in 1952.

The six suggestions made by the specialists are: mechanize production, balance crops and livestock, use better production methods, increase size of business, simplify work procedure, and improve labor relations.

It will be particularly important that the available labor supply be used as efficiently as possible, the specialists add.

Other suggestions to farmers for 1953: Reduce fertilizer costs, particularly for nitrogen, by shifting to higher analysis, lower cost per unit mixtures.

Carefully determine your requirements of production supplies. Order early to be sure they are available when needed.

Buy power and machinery needed to farm efficiently. Use machinery to increase production and to replace high-cost labor. Check possibilities of buying re-conditioned equipment. Keep machinery in good repair and under cover in a machine shed when not in use.

Steers finished on grass alone are practical and profitable in North Carolina, according to State College specialists.

Christmas Trees Can Be Put to Many Uses After New Year's

There are a number of things you can do with your Christmas tree after New Year's besides burning it.

If it is a fir, for instance, it can be anchored in the back yard—perhaps in a corner of the garden—and used as a bird feeder the remainder of the winter. Pieces of suet and little feed bags may be tied to the branches. A container of water should be placed beneath the tree and kept filled so the birds will have a drink every day.

Or, cut off the branches and place them, curved ends up, over flower beds when the ground is exposed. An evergreen mulch helps prevent the soil from heaving dur-

Folder Tells About Keeping Grain Clean

"Grain is Food — Keep it Clean!" is the title of a new folder, just published by the Agricultural Extension Service of N. C. State College.

The folder gives farmers instructions on how to keep their stored grain clean and thus save it from condemnation under the food and drug laws of the Federal government.

Efforts are now being directed at raw grain by the Federal Food and Drug Administration in its campaign to clean up impure, filthy, and adulterated feedstuffs. Grain elevators and other grain-handling concerns will be the immediate points of investigation. Ultimately, however, responsibility for clean grain will fall on the producer, in whose hands grain is more easily subject to insect and rodent contamination, and where prevention is more easily accomplished say State College specialists.

This means that sooner or later the grain producer will have to continue and increase steps to protect his grain through uses of insecticides, fumigants, and rodenticides, the specialists warn. Insect and rodent control programs will be of major importance in producing clean grain, they point out.

The folder can be obtained from your local county agent by title and number: Extension Folder No. 95, or by writing to

The Publications Department, N. C. State College, Raleigh.
