MRS. BENJAMIN TAYLOR JACKSON

Miss Jean Davis And B. I. Jackson Give Marriage Vows In Lovely Church Rites

In an elaborate and beautiful ceremony distinctive for beauty and reverence, Miss Alda Jean Davis and Benjamin Taylor Jackson pledged their marriage vows Thursday evening in Central Methodist church. The Reverend J. G. Winkler of Kannapolis, former pastor of the Central church, heard the couple take the vows of the double ring service and was assisted by the Rev. Phillip L. Shore, Jr., present pastor of the church.

The church chancel was banked with woodwardia and robinwood ferns and white wrought iron candelabras holding cathedral tapers arranged among them. At the center of the group of tapers and greenery was a large elongated arrangement of white gladioli, delphinium, and calla lilies. The choir rail was veiled in white net caught at intervals with fern sprays. The pattern of white tapers surrounded with greenery was repeated in the choir loft.

Mrs. Aubrey Mauney was at the console of the organ and voice selections were presented by Russell Montfort of Lexington and B. S. Peeler, Jr., of Kings Mountain.

Exquisite Gown The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was radiantly beautiful in her wedding gown of nylon tulle over satin, styled with yoke and long fitted sleeves of illusion, off shoulder decollete outlined with floral lace medallions which extended across the shoulders to form false cap sleeves over the long tulle ones. The lace medallion trim was repeated at the wrists and in panels down the front, back, and sides of the full skirt which cascaded into a full cathedral train.

Her veil of bridal illusion was caught to a cloche, appliqued with pearls, extending the full length of her train. She carried a white satin bound prayer book topped with two white purple throated orchids and stephanotis.

Bridal Attendants Attending the bride as maid-of-honor was Miss Faye Dean Evans of Lexington and her sister-in-law, Mrs. W. L. Davis of Albany, Ga. as matron-of-honor, Miss Jody Fallin of Hampton, Va., Miss Louise Jackson, sister of the bridegroom, and Mrs. Ray Ross, cousin of the bride, both of Jacksonville, Fla., and Mrs. Jack H. White, of Kings Mountain, served as bridesmaids.

The attendants wore dresses of identical blue nylon net over taffeta fashioned with bouffant shirts, fitted strapless bodices, and shaped lace stoles, each dipping to a deep point in the back. They carried cascades of bouquets of Queen Asters, shading from light to dark pink, pink nylon net puffs, pink ribbon leaves, and matching ribbon streamers. They wore bandeau hairdresses of flowers to match their bouquets.

Joseph W. Shands of Jacksonville, Fla. served as best man and Huit E. Mattox, Jr., of Bluefield, West Va., George B. Skipworth of Durham, William L. Davis of Albany, Ga., brother of the bride, and James M. Kelly of Dallas, Texas, as ushers.

Mrs. Davis had chosen for the occasion a dinner gown of mauve Chantilly lace with which she wore long white kid gloves and a white orchid corsage.

The bridegroom's mother chose a gown of blue nylon lace and tulle complementing her accessories with a white orchid corsage.

Background Mrs. Jackson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jedeth Roan Davis, was graduated from Kings Mountain High School and attended Greensboro College and Duke University, having received her degree from Duke in June 1952. She is now a teacher in the Durham city school system.

The bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Julian Harold Jackson of Jacksonville, Fla., also attended Duke University and is now a fourth year student in the Duke University School of Medicine.

Following the formal wedding reception given by the bride's parents after the ceremony, the young couple left for a wedding trip through the Great Smokies. For traveling the bride chose a smartly styled suit in brown linen, with accessories in white. Her close fitted hat was sequin trimmed. She had the two white orchids from her bouquet pinned at her shoulder.

After the wedding trip, the couple will be at home in Durham.

Reception Immediately following the wedding, the parents of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Davis entertained at their home with a beautifully planned formal reception.

Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Gantt met guests on the terrace and Jack White and Bill Davis received in the entrance hallway, where all white flowers were used for effective decorations. On the console table an antique silver candelabra entwined with gardenias and gypsophila posed before the mirror. The short stairway was entwined with ivy and on the newel post was a nosegay of white flowers tied with matching ribbon. Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Crosby presented the guests to the traditional receiving line in the living room composed of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Jackson, members of their wedding party. Mr. and Mrs. Julian Harold Jackson, parents of the groom, Mrs. Jackson, grandmother of the groom, Mrs. Pearl Adair, aunt of the bride, Rev. and Mrs. J. G. Winkler of Kannapolis and Rev. and Mrs. Philip Shore, Jr. The living room was also decorated in the white and green floral theme with the focal point centering around the mantelpiece with the decorative piece in gardenias, lilies, and glads.

Dining Room Decor The dining room was exquisitely arranged in a white color note with the refreshment table covered with a cloth of imported Swiss organdy over taffeta with a full gathered skirt. The center of the table held a stately, lighted flower tree, arranged with a silver candelabra holding white tapers, and bouquets of gardenias, lilies, and gypsophila with touches of smilax. A garland of smilax with airy gypsophila extended from the center of the table to each corner and was caught with a medallion of gardenias and ribbons. Another artistic decorative touch was the buffet table with the candelabras and the flower arrangement of gardenias, Calla lilies, and glads was most entrancing. On the china chest was an oblong arrangement of white glads.

Ice cream, individual cakes, and nuts were served by Mrs. Bill Page, Miss Margaret Goforth, Miss Beth Davis, Miss Cornelia Dick, and Mrs. Hill Carpenter.

Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Patterson received at the dining room door. Receiving in the hall were Dr. and Mrs. Wyan Washburn of Boiling Springs.

Mrs. J. H. Arthur and Mrs. C. F. Thomasson received in the gift room.

Presiding at the register in the den were Mrs. J. R. De Loatch, aunt of the bride and Mrs. H. M. Adair, cousin of the bride.
