

Fall Bond Sales Campaign Slated

Kenneth C. Wible of Greensboro, State Deputy Director of the U. S. Savings Bonds Program, was in Cleveland County recently making arrangements with County Chairman Geo. N. Blanton, bankers, newspapermen, radio station managers, RMA officials, and others for an advertising and publicity campaign to promote purchases of United States Savings Bonds among farmers, business and professional men and others.

"We are particularly aiming this campaign to reach our farm folks who are in the process of marketing their fall crops and who will want to save a portion of their tobacco dollars for a rainy day," Mr. Blanton said.

"A financial reserve is a very important part of the business of farming," he continued, "and a safe place for this reserve is in United States Savings Bonds where it draws 3 percent interest when held to maturity. Savings Bonds are a good buy! They are safe, earn a good rate of interest, can be replaced if lost, stolen or destroyed, and can be cashed at any bank at any time if needs or in an emergency."

Mr. Blanton said that thousands of North Carolina farmers, dairymen and business men are buying U. S. Savings Bonds regularly at banks through the Bond-A-Month Plan whereby a customer authorizes the bank to deduct the price of a Savings Bond each month from his checking account and mail the Bond to him. Also that thousands of North Carolina industrial employees are buying Bonds regularly through the Payroll Savings Plan where they work.

He reiterated that "keeping present investments in Savings Bonds and adding to them with income from tobacco and other fall crops will help to insure that a farm family can maintain its present standard of living when and if times get tough. Savings in bonds will provide for education of children, funds for retirement, future purchases of desired goods, worn-out farm machinery, and old-age security."
