National Forests Hunting Dates Are Listed

Hunters seeking big game in the high mountains of North Carolina will head for the hills October 15 to hunt bear in four areas of the North Carolina National Forests.

On that date bear hunting parties with dogs will go out in the West Fork section of Sherwood area; South Toe in the Mt. Mitchell area; Linville in the Daniel Boone area; and Big Santetlas and Barkers Creek in the Santetlas area. In the latter, they will hunt board as well as bear. The wild boar season is open in Cherokee, Graham and Clay Counties from October 15-January 1.

The deer season opens October 16 in the National Forests, with drawings for these hunts to be held at Asheville on October 15 and at Marion on the following day.

D. J. Morriss, director of North Carolina National Forests, says that recent rains throughout the areas to be hunted have made conditions favorable for the hunting season. All over Western North Carolina, experienced guides are preparing for the busiest time of the year, and their trained bear dogs are ready to assist with the tracking down of the quarry.

Still hunts for bear begin on November 16, when the deer season opens. December 7 marks the opening of the season when raccoon and opossum may be hunted by parties with dogs. Certain areas of the National Forests will be open for squirrel, ruffed grouse and rabbit hunts after December 7. Instruction sheets for small game hunts may be obtained from the North Carolina Wildlife Resources Commission, P. O. Box 2919, Raleigh, North Carolina, which cooperates with the U. S. Forest Service in the planning and supervision of hunting in the National Forests within the state.

Minors under 16 years of age may not be employed in harvesting North Carolina cotton, peanuts or other crops while school is in session.

Miss Hardin wore a pretty party dress of dark green shantung, textured taffeta with black accessories and a shoulder corsage of white French carnations which was a gift of the hostesses. Mixed fall flowers were used throughout the rooms.

Five card tables with an attractive flower arrangement were used. Bride's Dice was enjoyed by the twenty-five friends who attended the party. High score prizes went to Mrs. M. C. Hardin and Mrs. Lalyage Hord and the consolation prizes went to Miss Dorcella Carpenter and Mrs. Robert Price, who presented them to the honoree.

The following attended the party: Mrs. Park Moore, Mrs. Lyree Keeter, Mrs. Beck Wright, Mrs. J. B. Ellis, Mrs. John Gold, Mrs. Gene Turner, Mrs. Hubert Rollins, Mrs. Donald Woods, Mrs. W. W. McCarter, Mrs. M. C. Hardin, Miss Annie Randall, Misses Sally Davis, Mary Reed Norman, Dorcella Carpenter, Mrs. Sam Strain, Mrs. Lalyage Hord, Mrs. Robert Price, Mrs. E. W. Ervin, and Mrs. Gene Blanton.

The world's largest hotel, if converted into a mammoth sugar-ice tank, would hold only enough oil to supply the nation for about 10 hours. As an oil tank, the hotel would hold 3.4 million barrels. The United States requires over 8.3 million barrels a day for its domestic and foreign demand.
