Lions Rummage Sale Successful

The Kings Mountain Lions club successfully concluded its second annual Rummage Sale on October 31. Co-Chairmen Dan Huffstetler and J. W. Webster reported last week.

The sale was conducted at the Putnam Building on weekends throughout the month of October. It was announced that all leftover "inventory" has been turned over to the Kings Mountain Red Cross chapter for free distribution to needy citizens of Number 4 Township.

"We are deeply appreciative of the helpfulness of many citizens, both those who donated used clothing and those who purchased them. In making the project a success," the co-chairmen stated.

QUESTION: My neighbor milks the same breed cows I do. Why are his butterfat tests higher?

ANSWER: While the butterfat averages for the main breeds are: Ayrshire, 4 per cent; Guernsey, 5 per cent; Holstein, 3.4 per cent; and Jersey, 5.3 per cent, individual cows of the same breed will vary widely in their butterfat production.

QUESTION: What tools are most suitable for taking soil samples?

ANSWER: There are a number of tools such as a soil tube, auger, narrow trowel, or flat spade that can be used successfully. Under most conditions the soil tube is the easiest and most rapid tool to use. However, this tool cannot be used in gravel, hard or dry sandy soils. Tests show that the tool used does not materially affect the results of the test as long as a core, or slice of soil is taken at the desired number of places in each field.

QUESTION: Why not test subsoil samples?

ANSWER: Research studies have shown that cropping practices have little effect on the results of soil tests on subsoil samples. Lime and fertilizer is not being applied below the plow layer except in a few instances. Knowledge of the subsoils in a general area is sufficient without testing samples from each field on which recommendations are made.
