Peach-Freezing Method Outlined

What gives a peach that fresh, right-off-the-tree flavor when it is frozen and eaten in December?

According to Nita Orr, State College extension frozen foods specialist, to preserve the natural bouquet of the peach, pick the tree-ripened fruit in the cool of the morning, prepare and freeze immediately.

Avoid bruising in handling. Peaches that have been gathered for market and ripened off the tree may be frozen satisfactorily if they aren't bruised, adds Miss Orr.

Peel peaches by dipping and uniformly ripe fruit into boiling water for 30 to 90 seconds — just long enough to loosen the skin. Leaving the ripened fruit in boiling water too long will partially cook the peach and the fresh flavor will be lost. After dipping the peaches in hot water, plunge them into cold water and rub the skins off with your hands.

Peach varieties suitable for freezing are Dixie Gem, Sunbeam, Triogram, Goldeneast, Halshaven, Elberta, Hale, and Shipper's Late Red.

Pack halves in a 40 or 50 per cent chilled syrup with ascorbic acid added. Halves are good for both salads and desserts. Cover peach slices or chunks with a 40 or 50 percent chilled syrup containing ascorbic acid. Use for fresh dessert, pies, cobblers, or shortcake topping.

To make a quart of the 40 per cent syrup, mix 2 cups sugar and 3 cups water. Proportions for a quart of 50 per cent syrup are two and two-thirds cups sugar to two and two-thirds cups water.

Miss Orr recommends adding ascorbic acid, the anti-browning agent, according to the directions on the package.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Dear Sir: I received this weeks copy of your paper, which I enjoyed reading very much. I appreciate your sending it to this Marine Corps Recruiting Office, and look forward to reading it every week with great interest.

Bulletin Describes Control For Mastitis

Continuous spread of mastitis, or inflammation of the udder, results each year in enormous losses to dairymen, according to Howard Clapp, county agent.

More effective control of this condition would go a long way toward improving the efficiency of the dairy industry and helping individual dairymen to meet today's competitive standards, says Mr. Clapp.

The many causes of mastitis, methods of prevention and treatment, and the relation between general good management of dairy cows and udder health are described in a recently revised farmers' bulletin by the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

The bulletin, entitled "Udder Diseases of Dairy Cows," reports that mastitis is one of the chief causes for the heavy turnover in dairy herds.

Even with mild chronic mastitis, cows cannot produce as much milk as they could otherwise. As the disease becomes more acute, production may decrease as much as 25 percent or more, and early disposal of the animal may be necessary.

Fortunately most bacteria found in mastitis are harmless to people and, when milk is properly pasteurized, danger to public health is eliminated. Mastitis organisms are a threat chiefly to the profits of the producer, says Mr. Clapp, but that is reason enough to control them.

Funeral Rites For Watterson Held On Friday

Funeral rites for John Wilburn (Will) Watterson, 47, were conducted Friday at 3:30 p. m. from Oak Grove Baptist church with interment following in the church cemetery.

Rev. C. C. Crowe, the pastor, and Demuth Blanton, Wake Forest ministerial student, officiated. The body lay-in-state at the church one-half hour prior to the service.

Mr. Watterson, a prominent farmer, died at Kings Mountain hospital last Wednesday morning at 8:15 a. m. after suffering a cerebral hemorrhage at his home in the Oak Grove community less than three hours earlier.

A native of Cleveland county, he was the son of Mrs. Ida Dixon Watterson of Charlotte and the late John Watterson. He was a deacon of Oak Grove church, a member of his district school committee, a former president of the Bethware Progressive club, and a former Democratic precinct committee chairman.

Surviving are his mother, his wife, Mrs. Lizzie Lovelace Watterson, and four children, Billy Watterson, Mrs. Dewitt Randall, and Judy Watterson, all of Kings Mountain, and Mrs. Willard Boyles of Clearwater, Fla.

Five brothers, Bun Watterson, Bessemer City, Mitchell Watterson, Shelby, Elmer Watterson, Rock Hill, S. C., Raymond Watterson, Charlotte, Gene Watterson, LaGrange, Ga., and six sisters, Mrs. Beatrice Rogers, Tulsa, Okla., Mrs. G. B. Borders, Shelby, Mrs. A. C. Bell, Kings Mountain, Mrs. Clyde Pressley, Charlotte, Mrs. Ed Conder, Pineville, and Mrs. P. W. Helms, High Point, also survive.

Active pallbearers were Charles E. Goforth, Horace Bell, Garman Davis, Lester Canipe, Clarence Blanton, and Tom Hamrick.
