State College Answers
And Timely Farm Hints

QUESTION: How much pasture do I need?
ANSWER: Every farmer should provide at least one and one-half acres of improved permanent pastures or equivalent for each mature cow or horse and mule on his farm. Four brood sows is the equivalent of one cow. Twenty hogs, two 500-pound helters are all the equivalent of one cow.

QUESTION: What makes good permanent pasture?
ANSWER: Look at your land first. If it is clay soil or moist soil, then Ladino clover and orchard grass or Ladino clover and fescue should be the backbone of the grazing program. They will produce more feed over a period of years properly handled than any combination of plants now available.
