Mother's Day To Be Observed

Kings Mountain citizens will join with other Americans on Sunday in observing Mother's Day.
The Mother's Day theme will be observed in many church services, and most mothers will be the recipients of gifts and other tokens of remembrance from their children — young, old and in-between.
Traditionally, on Mother's Day, citizens wear roses in honor of their mothers.
Kings Mountain merchants were busy this week preparing for the pre-Mother's Day weekend, unpacking late-arriving merchandise especially designed for Mother's Day gifts.
Mother's Day is traditionally observed on the second Sunday in May. The observance was launched by Anna Jarvis, of Philadelphia, Pa.

Lenoir-Rhyne College Fund Drive Now Only $200,000 Short Of Goal

Catching their second breath at the North Carolina Synod Meeting in Wilmington on April 27 leaders of the Lenoir-Rhyne College Campaign for $1,500,000 under the chairman ship of Malcolm M. Palmer of Albemarle are now directing attention to fulfilling the entire program by raising the balance of $200,000 needed to reach the goal.
By decision of the Campaign Executive Committee the solicitation will continue actively until at least the objective is reached. Churches have been asked to continue working and making every effort to assure the needed balance in the next few weeks. This necessitates additional leadership by the Lutheran Pastors in activating local committees to make a complete solicitation of every member, resuscitation of members who may have underestimated the size of gifts necessary to reach such an objective, and encouraging the "Book of Memory" plan for individuals and groups who contribute $150 and more. In addition, churches are encouraged to consider designated gifts for individual rooms or section of the proposed seven buildings at Lenoir-Rhyne College.
Mr. Palmer has made a special appeal to all Lutherans in North Carolina to make it their individual responsibility to give generous and work untiringly to meet the greatest challenge ever made to the Lutheran people. Chairman Palmer cited the successful experience of other de-

WHY DOES SOUTHERN BELL REJECT ARBITRATION?

WHY DOES SOUTHERN BELL REJECT ARBITRATION? The wages and working conditions of 50,000 telephone workers in the South are now the subject of a long strike because Southern Bell management will not submit vital contract matters to full arbitration.
Telephone workers are at a loss to understand why Southern Bell is afraid of arbitration.
Only one conclusion can be drawn: Southern Bell wanted this strike, and now wants it to last as long as possible.
The economic power of the Bell System is enormous. Assets top SIXTEEN BILLION dollars. There is no larger Company in the world. From a strictly business point of view, management mistakes can be buried. With reasonable profits guaranteed by the terms of the exclusive franchises granted to the Company by State Public Utility governing boards, management can do no wrong because they do not have to pay for mistakes in judgment. The public pays.

In dealing with their employees, they have also assumed that they can do no wrong. Before telephone workers organized their own Union in the South, staffed by native folks who also grew up in the industry, management was able to play the role of the all-powerful and make it stick. As a matter of fact, that is the main reason why telephone workers organized into a Union.
A contract covering wages and working conditions was finally obtained, after tremendous resistance on the part of management. Through the years, the contract has been under consistent attack through the Company's policy of "chipping away" at the rights contained therein.

Because arbitration has been limited or entirely forbidden on many vital matters, union members have historically reserved the right to strike when important grievances were ignored or otherwise "sloughed off" by management. All of these years, we have sought to obtain full arbitration of all matters in the contract. We repeat, full arbitration of matters IN THE CONTRACT. We believe that any item which the Company sees fit to place in the contract should be subject to enforcement by the Union. Otherwise, we would have a worthless scrap of paper, not a real contract.
If the Company wishes to reserve the right to violate the contract, they can't expect much sympathy from the Union or from the public.
Arbitration procedures that are limited and restricted have proven to be utterly useless as a means of contract enforcement. That's the kind of arbitration that the Company has put into our past contracts.
Arbitration has been restricted or not permissible on these vital matters affecting the 50,000 Southern Bell telephone workers:
Discharges, Suspensions, Promotions, Transfers, Leaves of Absence, Service Requirements, Administration of the Pension and Benefit Plan, and matters affecting Health and Safety.

WHY DOES SOUTHERN BELL REFUSE ARBITRATION? Let's look into it. Are their hands tied by Bell System policy?
Certainly not. All of these matters are subject to real arbitration in other Bell System contracts.
Southern Bell refuses arbitration—but not even the remainder of the Bell System has done that! It seems to us that Southern Bell management is looking for a contract that will allow them to cover up mistakes in dealing with human beings, just as their mistakes in business judgment are covered up by business franchises and guaranteed profits.
And there might be another reason.
DOES SOUTHERN BELL WANT TO BREAK THE UNION? It could be. Many facts point in that direction. The Company has demanded a "no strike" clause; they have contended since before the strike began that the "no strike" clause is the "real" issue in dispute.
Yet the Union is now and has been willing to sign a "no strike" clause! All that we ask in return is that the Company permit arbitration of the facts concerning our grievances.
The Telephone Company has rejected arbitration. That precipitated the strike, and for weeks thousands of workers have been without income and you, the public, are paying for inferior telephone service AT THE REGULAR RATES. All of this because the telephone company refuses to agree to the time-honored, the democratic and fair means of dealing with deadlocked negotiations:

ARBITRATION
WE PUBLICLY CHALLENGE THE SOUTHERN BELL TELEPHONE COMPANY TO END THE STRIKE AND SEND US BACK TO WORK BY AGREEING TO ARBITRATION OF OUR ENTIRE DISPUTE. YOU, THE PEOPLE, BE THE JUDGES:
