

More Popular Than In 1952

PRINCETON, N.J.—If a Presidential election were being held today between the 1952 Presidential candidates, President Eisenhower would probably poll a bigger vote against Adlai Stevenson than he did in the November, 1952, elections.

This is the way Man On The Street sees it at this time:

Eisenhower 62%
Stevenson 38

In the 1952 nationwide Presidential elections, Eisenhower received 55.4 per cent; Stevenson, 44.6 per cent of the two party vote.

When today's vote is stacked up alongside the national Presidential vote in the past six elections, the trend looks like this:

NATIONAL PRESIDENTIAL VOTE
	% Rep.	% Dem.
1932 Elect.	40.9	59.1
1936 Elect.	37.5	62.5
1940 Elect.	45.0	55.0
1944 Elect.	46.2	53.8
1948 Elect.	*45.3	49.9
1952 Elect.	55.4	44.6
Today's Prediction	62.0	38.0

*2.4 per cent voted for the Progressive Candidate Henry A. Wallace and 2.4 per cent voted for the States' Rights' Candidate J. Strom Thurmond.

Here's the tally on the number of states each party won in each Presidential Election since 1932.

NATIONAL PRESIDENTIAL ELECTION
	Number of states Won by	Dem.
1932 Elect.	6	42
1936 Elect.	2	46
1940 Elect.	10	38
1944 Elect.	11	37
1948 Elect.	*16	28
1952 Elect.	39	9

In the 1948 Elections, four states cast their vote for the States' Rights' Candidate Jay Strom Thurmond.

In 1932, Herbert Hoover, the Republican Presidential candidate, carried six states: Connecticut, Delaware, Maine, New Hampshire, Pennsylvania, and Vermont. The remaining 42 states voted for Franklin Delano Roosevelt.

In 1936, Republican Candidate Alfred M. Landon carried only Maine and Vermont; the other 46 states going down the line for F. D. R.

In 1940, ten states: Colorado, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Maine, Michigan, Nebraska, North Dakota, South Dakota and Vermont went to Republican Wendell Willkie; Franklin D. Roosevelt carried the other 38 states.

In the 1944 Presidential Election, Republican Candidate Thomas E. Dewey carried 11 states: Colorado, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Maine, Nebraska, North Dakota, Ohio, South Dakota, Vermont and Wisconsin; the remaining 37 states went to Roosevelt.

In the 1948 Elections, Republican Candidate Thomas E. Dewey carried the following 16 states: Connecticut, Delaware, Indiana, Kansas, Maine, Maryland, Michigan, Nebraska, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, North Dakota, Oregon, Pennsylvania, South Dakota, and Vermont.

In 1948 four states went to the States' Rights' Candidate Thurmond: Alabama, Louisiana, Mississippi, and South Carolina. The remaining 28 states went to Democrat Harry S. Truman.

In the 1952 Elections, the Democratic Candidate Adlai Stevenson carried nine states: Alabama, Arkansas, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, and West Virginia; the other 39 states going to President Eisenhower. The Herald presents MAN ON THE STREET exclusively in this area.

The actual question used by MAN ON THE STREET was: "Suppose the Presidential Election were being held today, if President Eisenhower were the Republican candidate and former

Familiar Egg May Be Changed

Extension workers attending the Poultry Science Association meeting in Raleigh heard some of their co-workers give predictions of things to come in the poultry industry.

That egg that Mrs. Housewife cracked on the side of the skillet for breakfast this morning may be on the way out. At least, in the not too far distant future she may be buying her eggs in compartmented plastic packages which enable her to see before she buys the color and quality of every egg. Then too, she may be buying the eggs from a vending machine conveniently located to take care of purchases for that midnight snack after the stores have closed.

Charles W. Wampler of Harrisonburg, Va., thinks that the outlook for poultry producers is very bright. As our population becomes even more a population of indoor people, the consumption of heavy meats will be replaced with the lighter foods such as poultry, milk and eggs.

W. E. Newlon from the University of California predicted that the egg candling machines are on the way out. Since the mine whether an egg is fit to eat method now in use can only determine its real quality, electronic machines will be developed to inspect the eggs for uniformity of shell color, weight, and density of yolk. Newlon believes that the air-conditioned, light-controlled hen house is just around the corner as poultrymen make a real effort to control temperature and light conditions which have such a great effect on egg production.

On the basis of final reports from growers, inspection, sales and millings data, peanut production in 1955 was estimated at 204,250,000 pounds. This was the lowest production since the 1933 crop.

Illinois Governor Stevenson were the Democratic candidate, which one would you like to see win?"

Man On The Street put the above question to a representative cross-section in certain key areas whose past voting behavior has been carefully studied and weighed in relation to the nation's vote.
