

Age-Old Problem Of Handling Cash Still Important

Money can do for you just what you choose to make it do. This handling of money can bring happiness and satisfaction or it can result in much unhappiness and dissatisfaction—even tragedy.

According to Mamie Whisnant, extension home management specialist at State College, many family difficulties center around family income—whether that income is large or small. Success in money matters depend on how well the money is handled.

"A saving and spending plan worked out by a family to fit its own particular family and individual needs," says Miss Whisnant, "is one of the surest ways of getting the greatest return for your money and having a wholesome, happy and satisfying life." Developing a spending and saving plan may seem hard at first, warns Miss Whisnant. However, it is well worth the trouble if it is a plan that is suited to your situation, if you stay with it long enough, and are willing to change it as family needs and situations change.

There is no doubt that money is one of the most complicated problems with which we have to deal today. Our modern improved living standards depend on money for practically everything we need and want. With increased family living costs now our money problems are more complicated; it is more difficult to "make ends meet."

Such a spending and saving plan as Miss Whisnant recommends will give you a definite idea of where your money will go "before it goes," once money is gone, it's too late to do anything about it.

Rev. S. M. Hughes Gives 750 Books To Gardner-Webb College Library

BOILING SPRINGS—Gardner-Webb College received approximately 750 books this week as a gift from the Rev. Samuel Mason Hughes of Kings Mountain.

The books, representing one of the largest collections ever given to the college, will be catalogued and placed on the shelves of the Dover Memorial Library. They are a gift to the department of church-community development, bringing this department's collection to around 1,500 books.

Included in the list of books are church histories, commentaries, encyclopedias, Greek and Hebrew texts, and other Biblical, theological and language books. Some of the volumes including a Jewish encyclopedia are valued as highly as $65 each.

The Rev. Hughes has been a Baptist pastor in Cleveland County since 1951, and has taught extension courses in Gardner-Webb's church-community department throughout that time. Last has voiced the hope that one million North Carolinians will vote on the public school amendment on September 8.

Hodges Seeks Million Tar Heels To Vote On School Law Changes

"A turnout by that many North Carolinians, representing both major political parties, would be a fine exhibition of our attitude toward our great school system," he said.

The governor made his statement as Raymond Maxwell, Executive Secretary of the State Board of Elections, mailed absentee ballot forms to the 100 county boards of elections in the State. Regular ballots will be mailed out within the next few days.

The public school ballot will allow properly registered persons to cast ballots "for" or "Against" a constitutional amendment which, if adopted, would allow local option units to close their schools if conditions become intolerable, and allow the use of State and local funds for education expense grants. Of course, no school could be closed without a vote of the people.

This proposed amendment, submitted to the people by an overwhelming vote of the legislature, is what Governor Hodges calls "stand-by" legislation. The governor is very hopeful that it never will be needed. Instead, he has urged voluntary segregation in the public schools, and use of the 1955 pupil assignment statute to its fullest extent.

An affirmative vote by the people on September 8 does not mean that either local option or education expense grants will go into immediate use. They would merely be "safety-valves" to be used in case the other courses did not work in a manner acceptable to the people.

Public approval must twice be had before any school could be closed: (1) the amendment must pass in September; and (2) the people of any given local option unit would vote later, if conditions become intolerable, on closing their school.

These merely are facilities for carrying out what the Pearsall Advisory Committee and the government believe to be the consensus of the great majority of North Carolinians; and that is that no child should be forced to attend public school with members of another race if the parents of the child object. Maxwell, meanwhile, issued details of the election procedure. Registered people, no matter whether Democrats or Republicans, can vote. Voting will be held at regularly established precincts. Registration books were opened for new registrants at the polling places on Saturday, August 11. They will be open again on Saturday, August 18; and Saturday, August 25. Persons desiring to register at any other times can do so at the home of the registrar. September 1 will be challenge day. Absentee ballots may be obtained from the chairman of the county board of elections. These are available to people who will be away from their polling place on election day, and to the ill. Servicemen who are assigned elsewhere, their wives and dependents can get absentee ballots from the Office of the Secretary of State in Raleigh. Service personnel can get application forms from their commanding officers if they wish.
