GARDEN TIME
ROBERT SCHMIDT
N. C. STATE COLLEGE

This is the critical period for the strawberry bed. Either the crabgrass is choking the plants out or dry weather is killing them. For that reason many of our home gardeners are resorting to fall plantings. However, the market gardener is concerned with low costs and high production and therefore must continue to practice spring planting and the development of a matted row bed.

You probably have observed that as soon as the spring crop was harvested the old plants began to send out many runners which produced runner plants which caught root in the soil along the row. In the heat of late summer not many runners are produced but in September and October the runner formation is heavy again. However, our scientists have found that runner plants rooted in early summer will produce about twice as many berries as plants rooted in the fall. For that reason you should make an extra effort to save the early runner plants and keep them growing.

During late August in the mountains and during early September in the eastern part of the state is the proper time to apply fertilizer to strawberries. If you have a narrow row the fertilizer can be applied in a shallow furrow on each side of the row. If you have a wide matted row it will be necessary to apply some of the fertilizer on top of the plants in the center of the row when the leaves are dry and then brush the fertilizer off the plants. The recommended fertilizer application is 700 lbs. of an 8-8-8 mixture per acre which is equivalent to about 3 quarts per 100 ft. of row.

She continued by saying that her father cursed her and threatened to slap her several times during the course of the quarrel.

Mrs. Whetstine took the stand and testified that her husband had been drinking earlier Saturday afternoon.

Judge White was asked to dismiss the charges by Mr. Harrill, but he declined the request. The judge continued prayer for judgment for Mr. Whetstine, on the conditions that he not go on the premises of his daughter's home or molest her in any way.

Robert Lee Booth pled guilty to a charge of no chauffeur's license, and was fined $25 and the costs as a condition for suspension of a 60-day road term.

Rufus Davis, Elmer Lumber Co. employee was fined a like amount for the same offense.

Herbert Hutchins, Negro, pled guilty to charges of reckless driving and was fined $5 and the costs as a condition for suspension of a 90-day road term.

Bobby Williams, Negro, pled guilty to charges of non-support of an illegitimate child, and was ordered to pay $5 per week for the support of the child. He was also charged the costs of court as a condition for suspension of a six months road sentence.

Bill Mitchem received 90-days on the roads for public drunkenness. Mitchem, whose face is very familiar in the city courtroom, was convicted of public drunkenness for more than three times, and received the jail sentence.

Make Sure Medicine Cabinet Is Child-Proof

BY EDNA MILES

IN the hands of your child, even that safe and standard household remedy, aspirin, can become dangerous. Children often confuse pills with candy and every day small victims of their own curiosity are rushed to hospitals.

Best solution to this problem is to see to it that the medicine cabinet is not accessible to the small fry.

Since it must be accessible to adult members of the family, some families provide a special lock for the medicine cabinet.

Others keep only those remedies in the cabinet which absolutely cannot prove harmful.

Whatever your choice, it's a good idea to clear the entire medicine chest from time to time and restock it with fresh supplies.

Medicines gone stale are useless and some may prove toxic.

Among your supplies should be a non-poisonous and stable antiseptic for cuts and scratches that may be kept safely for long periods.

Such an antiseptic is now on the market in liquid form.

It's used for insect bites and poison ivy as well as for cuts and scratches.

Twice dangerous is situation posed, above. Little girl should be discouraged from "mountaineering" and YOU should keep all drugs, strong medications under lock and key ALWAYS..

Recorder's Court Clears Docket In Two-Hour Session On Monday

A two-and-a-half hour Recorder's Court session Monday cleared most of a heavily laden docket, before a packed courtroom.

James Clark, Negro, who appeared last week on charges of failing to vaccinate a dog, had his case non-pressed by Judge Jack White after he furnished proof that he had killed the dog in question. Judge White has continued prayer for judgement last week in order to give the defendant time to produce evidence that the dog had been destroyed.

Kenneth Maynard Williams was picked up on a capias for failure to comply with a court order. Williams had been found guilty of a no operator's license charge in May, and had been ordered to pay a fine of $25 and the costs as conditions for suspension of a 90-day road term. Judge White ordered the defendant to pay the balance on this fine or have the sentence put into effect.

Lester Lee Ward, formerly of Clover and now a resident of Belmont, had also been picked up on a capias. Ward was charged with a second offense of driving drunk and pled guilty to these charges. Judge White ordered the man to pay a fine of $300 and the costs of court as conditions for suspension of a 12-months road term. He also revoked Ward's driving license.

Charlie Frank Rhodes, Negro, was in court accused of assaulting his 15-year-old stepson. Rhodes pled not guilty to the charges, but after hearing the testimony of the boy, Judge White found him guilty of assault on a minor. Rhodes was given a 90-day road term, suspended upon the conditions that he pay a fine of $5 and the costs, and be of good behavior for 90 days.

Will Whetstine was charged with forcible trespass, and retained Attorney E. A. Harrill to plead his case. This was one of the longer cases to be tried, with lengthy testimony for both the state and defense being heard.

Mrs. Annie Mae Leigh, a daughter of the defendant, filed the charge against her father. Mrs. Leigh told the court that her father and mother visited at her home Saturday night, and that a quarrel started between her father and herself.

She continued by saying that her father cursed her and threatened to slap her several times during the course of the quarrel.

Mrs. Whetstine took the stand and testified that her husband had been drinking earlier Saturday afternoon.

Judge White was asked to dismiss the charges by Mr. Harrill, but he declined the request. The judge continued prayer for judgment for Mr. Whetstine, on the conditions that he not go on the premises of his daughter's home or molest her in any way.

Robert Lee Booth pled guilty to a charge of no chauffeur's license, and was fined $25 and the costs as a condition for suspension of a 60-day road term.

Rufus Davis, Elmer Lumber Co. employee was fined a like amount for the same offense.

Herbert Hutchins, Negro, pled guilty to charges of reckless driving and was fined $5 and the costs as a condition for suspension of a 90-day road term.

Bobby Williams, Negro, pled guilty to charges of non-support of an illegitimate child, and was ordered to pay $5 per week for the support of the child. He was also charged the costs of court as a condition for suspension of a six months road sentence.

Bill Mitchem received 90-days on the roads for public drunkenness. Mitchem, whose face is very familiar in the city courtroom, was convicted of public drunkenness for more than three times, and received the jail sentence.

J. C. Guinn, Negro, pled guilty to charges of no operator's license and was given a six months road sentence, suspended upon the conditions that he pay a fine of $25 and the costs.

John R. Guinn, a brother to J. C. Guinn, was accused of public drunkenness and aiding and abetting in no operator's license. The defendant admitted that he allowed his brother to drive his car knowing that he had no driving license.

Judge White found the defendant not guilty on the public drunkenness charge but gave him nine months suspended upon the condition that he pay a fine of $25 and the costs in the aiding and abetting count.

Roosevelt Jefferson, Negro, pled guilty to charges of drunk driving, and received a one-year road sentence, suspended upon the condition that he pay a fine of $100 and the costs, and that his driver's license be revoked.

Pride Sadler, charged with drunk driving, asked for a jury trial. This request was granted upon the posting of the proper jury fees.

Edward Strong, Jr., just about had a perjury charge brought against him by Judge White as a result of his testimony in an assault by threat case against him.

Judge White questioned Strong about previous convictions, and when the defendant denied having been convicted on various counts shown on his police record card, Judge White ordered him held for perjury. Further questioning resulted in Strong giving the correct answers, and the felonious charge was dropped by the judge.

Strong was found guilty of threatening his wife with a rock, following an incident involving another woman last weekend. He was given a two-year road term suspended upon the condition that he be of good behavior, and pay a fine of $15 and the costs.

Joshua Guest, Negro, pled guilty to charges of no operator's license, and was given 60-days suspended upon payment of a fine of $25 and the costs.

Henry Waddell Davis, Negro, pled guilty to driving after expiration of his operator's license, and was given a 30-day sentence suspended upon payment of the costs of court.

A public drunkenness count against Austin Falls, and a failure to vaccinate a dog charge against Edith McGill were continued until next week. Also continued, for the fourth time, was a trespassing charge against Matthew Brown, Negro minister of Charlotte.

Tests by the U. S. Department of Agriculture indicate that new plastic films, used as liners, may be the answer to water losses by seepage from farm reservoirs.
