

Former Kings Mountain Teacher Joining Oswego College Faculty

A former Kings Mountain school teacher, Miss Elizabeth Hunt, described as the Charlotte school system's most unique teacher, is leaving Charlotte to join the faculty of Oswego State Teachers College, at Oswego, N. Y.

Miss Hunt is one of five North Carolinians certified to teach manual arts—a field almost exclusive to men.

Miss Hunt's appointment to the Oswego faculty and her leaving the Charlotte system, was reported in the Charlotte Observer by Hoke May on Wednesday.

His news story follows:

"Charlotte's city school system completed a 74-year-old exchange Tuesday and lost its most unusual teacher.

"The teacher, vivacious, dark-haired Elizabeth Hunt of Gastonia, is leaving to accept a post at Oswego State Teachers College in upper New York State.

"What makes her unusual is her choice of fields.

"She is an industrial arts consultant—one of the few women employed in this field in the nation.

"She is considered one of the nation's best instructors in elementary manual arts, a phase of teaching dominated by men.

"Her employment at Oswego, one of the most demanding teachers colleges, in the nation is witness of her ability.

So said Dr. Elmer Garinger, Charlotte city school superintendent who added:

"While we are very sorry to lose Miss Hunt, we consider it an honor that she goes from our system to Oswego."

"At the New York school, Miss Hunt—lib to her friends—will hunt prospective teachers in elementary industrial arts instruction.

"She picked up an interest in tools and woodworking while a student at Berea College in Kentucky.

"At Berea, work is emphasized. As a matter of course, its students work at least two hours a day. Miss Hunt labored at wood-working and in the electric machine shop.

"I liked it so well," she said, "that, after I was graduated and had taught for several years, I decided to get an industrial arts certificate."

"Before attending East Carolina College where she was certified as an industrial arts teacher, Miss Hunt taught English and physics in Rutherford County and the eighth grade at Kings Mountain.

"At East Carolina, she became the only woman certified there in industrial arts. There are only five other women similarly certified in the state.

"Miss Hunt joined the Charlotte system in September, 1951, and established the first elementary school manual training program here.

"She is very popular among the children," Dr. Garinger said. "When I visit the schools, the first question children usually ask me is, 'When will Miss Hunt be back.'"

"To this, Miss Hunt modestly added:

"You don't have to sell little children on hammering and sawing, and it's bound to make you popular with them."

"The program she supervised has a firm foundation in modern education which recognizes the need for grounding pupils in the basic use of tools.

"Miss Hunt resigned from the Charlotte system Tuesday, Thursday she expects to leave her Gastonia home which she shares with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. O. R. Hunt, for the drive to New York.

"When she arrives at Oswego, she will complete a 74-year-old exchange.

"It dates back to 1882 when city public schools were founded at Charlotte and their corps of five professional teachers came here from Oswego."

4-H Project Grows Into Curb Market

Under the watchful eyes of three Cumberland County 4-H club members, projects in vegetable gardening blossomed into something more than quality vegetables. Negro County Agent B. T. McNeill says that Sylvia, Bernice, and Clarence Hodges, working with their father Jim Hodges, have been able to make a good start toward establishing a permanent curb market on their farm near Hope Mills.

About three years ago the 4-Hers selected vegetable gardening as their project. McNeill says they soon realized that their location next to the highway provided them with a good opportunity for marketing their fresh vegetables if they could construct a building.

They talked this idea over with their truck farmer father, and plans were made to use the money they made from vegetable sales to build some type of building. Last year the three children contributed $347, and their father supplied the balance on a partnership basis. The club members says McNeill, did much of the construction work.

To supply their new market with fresh vegetables throughout the year, they plan to plant not less than 22 different varieties at different intervals during the year. In addition to the small plots of different vegetables

GARDEN TIME

ROBERT SCHMIDT
N. C. STATE COLLEGE

I have just received a copy of the N. C. State Fair catalog which reminds me that many community and county fairs will be held during the next six weeks.

Every gardener should take an interest in the local fair and also the State fair. If you have anything worth exhibiting, you should take pride in showing it. How many times have you stood in front of a prize winning flower, vegetable or fruit at a fair and said, either to those with you or to yourself, "I've got a better one than that in the garden right now."

You may be absolutely right. Only, having it winning a blue ribbon on the show table and having it growing in the garden are two entirely different things. The point is to get it from the garden to the show table and still have it good enough to win.

planted this year, they planted two acres of watermelons, and one-half acre each of lima beans, tomatoes, and cabbage.

Jim Hodges says, "At first I thought it was just a bright idea, but it really working with the family pulling together."

Demand for many farm products in this country by 1957 may be 40 to 45 per cent more than in 1953, estimates Rex F. Daly, a U. S. Department of Agriculture researcher. Use of livestock products is expected to increase more than use of crops. The estimate is based on assumptions of a growing population, labor force, and employment. It also assumes that the world trend is toward peace.

Fruits, such as apples and pears, should have true varietal characteristics, should be well colored and not over-ripe. They should be free from disease and insect damage. Stems must not be removed from apples and pears. All specimens in a plate or tray should be uniform in size, shape, and color.

Three Local Barbers Attended AMB Meet

The twenty-eighth Convention of the Association of Master Barbers of N. C. was held in High Point September 2-3-4 at the Sheraton Hotel.

Three of the barbers attending from the K. M. Chapter were President J. Lee Roberts, Sidney R. Dixon, Secretary and Treasurer, and Curtis V. Gaffney, Corresponding Secretary.

A highlight of the Convention was Hair Styling Demonstrations by Anton P. Olivo of Chicago. Senator O. A. Kirkman introduced Mr. Edwin Gill, State treasurer of N. C. who discussed the Pearsall Plan. The Association went on record as to adopt a Safety Program to be worked through and with the Highway Commission.

The Kings Mountain Chapter 1049 was given special recognition as being the newest Chapter in the state and also as the only Chapter having all shop owners and barbers as members of the Association.

The 1957 Convention will be held in Charlotte, N. C. on Labor Day weekend.

Negro Arrested After Accident

John R. Adams, 37-year-old Negro of route 2, Kings Mountain, was arrested Saturday afternoon following an automobile accident and charged with hit-and-run, driving after revocation of license, and driving on the wrong side of the road.

It was reported that Adams, driving an Oldsmobile, met Deputy L. L. Hamrick on a blind curve on the Dixon School road, forcing Hamrick to leave the road. The 1956 Ford driven by

Labor Day Picnic Held By Lithium

The Employee Benefit Committee of Lithium Corporation of America held a Labor Day Picnic for its employees and their families at Camp York, S. C. Approximately 450 people attended the picnic. The main activity was a ball game between the B shift employees and the Engineers. The B shift was victorious by a score of 6-3.

Other activities included horse shoe pitching for both the employees and their children. Johnny Lavender and Austell Bettis, Jr., won in the children's class and Johnny Howell and Joe Faris won in the employees' class.

Johnny Lavender and Austell Bettis, Jr., won the three-legged race and were the only two to come up with two championships for the afternoon.

In the "digging for silver" contest the winners who found silver dollars were: Ages 3-6, Mike Morgan and Karen; 7-9, Karen Nielsen; 10-12, Kay Wirick, and 13-15, Geraldine Humphries.

The afternoon was topped off with supper, including barbecue and ice cream sandwiches.

Hamrick was struck in the left side by Adams' car, and crashed into several mail boxes on the shoulder of the road. Damage to the deputy's vehicle was estimated at about $250.

Adams failed to stop and left his car about one-half mile from the accident. He was followed on foot for about one and a half miles, and finally was apprehended by the State Highway Patrol driving another car on the El Bethel road.

He was arrested and released under an $800 bond. He is scheduled to face trial in Shelby Recorder's Court.
