Slow Speeds At Night, Advises Smith

RALEIGH — "Drive right, slow down at night!"

In these words, Col. James R. Smith, commander of the State Highway Patrol this week emphasized the necessity of reducing speed at night. Col. Smith spoke on behalf of this month's safety-after-dark program of the Motor Vehicles Department.

"Darkness reduces visibility, so the distance you can see at night is limited," Col. Smith said. "A good rule of the thumb is to travel at a speed that is slow enough to enable you to stop within the distance covered by your headlight beam."

Even when traveling at a low speed, the driver is still in greater danger of an accident at night than in the daytime, so he must increase his vigilance, the colonel said. He especially cautioned drivers to watch out for pedestrians dressed in dark clothing and for vehicles with dim lights or no lights at all.

"Be sure your own lights are in good condition," he warned. "Make it a habit to turn on your driving lights at the first hint of dusk, and always use them properly. Use the upper beam only on rural highways when no approaching car is within 1000 feet. Dim your lights even though an oncoming driver fails to dim his."

It's also important that all parts of your car be in top condition. Because danger is much closer before you can see it in the darkness, night driving makes sure mechanical response a must, Col. Smith said.

Here are a few more do's and don'ts the colonel mentioned. Be sure your lights are on before you pull onto a thoroughfare at night. Don't wear tinted glasses at night. Never stop on the traveled portion of the highway at night; pull completely off the road, leaving parking and dome lights on. If you must have full headlights on, dim them. It's also a good idea to have your directional signal light flashing. Carry flares for use in emergencies. All of these precautions help to let other drivers know you are stopped.

"And remember," Col. Smith said, "the most important rule of all is: 'Be your brother's keeper.' At night it's twice as important to give the other fellow the benefit of the doubt in traffic."

October 24 will be observed as United Nations Day.

One Court Case Heard Monday

City Recorder's Court set a new record for short sessions Monday, as only one defendant was tried.

With only three cases scheduled to be heard, Judge White continued a reckless driving charge against Morris R. Dixon until next week, and Thelma Brown failed to appear for trial on a public drunkenness count, and a capias was ordered issued for her.

In the lone case tried, Woodrow Roberts, Negro, was charged with assault on a female, and entered a plea of guilty. Judge White sentenced him to 60 days on the roads, suspended on the condition that he pay the costs of court and be of good behavior for six months.

Bobbie Oxford Furman Student

GREENVILLE, S. C. — Miss Bobbie Oxford from Kings Mountain is among the 1379 students enrolled at Furman University for the fall term, according to registrars Eula Barton and C. L. Rasor.

The enrollment includes 812 men and 567 women students, an increase of 40 students over last year. About 80 per cent of this year's number are from South Carolina, 43 counties being represented. Of the 23 other states having students at Furman, North Carolina has 90 and Georgia 63.

Eleven students come from places outside the United States, including the Bahama Islands, Chile, China, Formosa, Greece, India, Korea, Lebanon, Philippine Islands Puerto Rico and Alaska.

Miss Oxford, a senior at Furman, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Oxford of Route 1.

BLESSED With Opportunity

NORTH CAROLINA has everything that many industries need for successful operation.

"Vast potentials remain virtually untapped," says Governor Hodges, "I believe our future is practically unlimited if we accept the opportunities before us."

New and expanding industry is the answer to North Carolina's greatest economic problem—which is lower per capita income than 42 other states.

Strides forward have already been made in establishing profitable new industries, large and small, in the State. Many communities are already feeling direct benefits of their payrolls. But the greatest task lies ahead. Success depends upon the understanding and efforts of all North Carolinians.

The Dept. of Conservation & Development in Raleigh will send its booklet on Community Organization for Industrial Development free upon request.
