On January 11, 1957 the Kings Mountain Chapter of the National Honor Society in an impressive ceremony inducted from the Senior class: Jeanne Plonk and David Balty.

Curtis George presided. Jane Osborne presented Rev. Douglas Fritz, who spoke on the four cardinal principles upon which the society is founded.

Scholarship, leadership, character and service were further interpreted by Peggy Reynolds, Pat Owens, Sybil Stringfellow and Mary Ann Beam. Doris Cloninger explained the significance of the colors, the emblem, and the motto of the society.

Peggy Reynolds reviewed the roster of those who have been inducted into the society during the last five years.

The new members were tapped and conducted to the stage. They wrote their names on the Chapter scroll and after lighting their candles received cards of membership from Mr. Brown.

The new members repeated the pledge of membership, and the program was concluded with the musical reading of "Hold High the Torch" by Jane Osborne, accompanied at the piano by Mary Ann Beam. Following the ceremony pictures were made of the Chapter members. The society was honored in having a large number of guests to attend the induction ceremony.

Approximately 34,000 gallons of water are needed to irrigate one acre of farm land one inch deep.

$3,966 Short

Cleveland County citizens had contributed $6,034 to the Tuberculosis association via purchase of Christmas seals through Tuesday, Mrs. B. M. Jarrett, secretary, reported.

The total left the association nearly $4,000 short of its $10,000 goal.

Mrs. Jarrett said reminder notices had been mailed to business firms which customarily subscribed to the campaign, but had not in 1956, and that second reminders had gone out to individuals who had neither paid for, nor returned, Christmas seals.

The association uses its funds to help operation of the county mobile X-Ray unit, to provide aid to indigent tuberculosis patients, and for education to prevent tuberculosis.

There are individual industries in North Carolina that use more water each day than any three cities in the State.
