This Is The Law

By Robert E. Lee (For the N. C. Bar Association) ARREST BY OFFICER

ARREST BY PRIVATE PERSON
 May a private person arrest another without a warrant?

Yes. There are two North Carolina statutes listing instances where a private person may arrest without a warrant.

Section 15-39 of the General Statutes provides: "Every person present at any riot, rout, affray or other breach of the peace, shall endeavor to suppress and prevent the same, and, if necessary for that purpose, shall arrest the offenders."

Section 15-40 of the General Statutes provides: "Every person in whose presence a felony has been committed may arrest the person whom he knows or has reasonable ground to believe to be guilty of such offense..."

Both of these statutes require that the crime be committed within the presence of the private person making the arrest. And if the particular crime is not a "breach of the peace", the private person must determine at his peril whether the crime is a felony.

It is better and safer to obtain a warrant when this may be promptly done. If a private person undertakes to arrest without a warrant another person other than in the instances listed in these statutes, he at once trespasses on the legal right of another; and the party who he undertakes to deprive of his liberty may resist him with such force as may be necessary to defend himself successfully.

What is a felony?
 The term is defined in the statutes of North Carolina as follows: "A felony is a crime which is or may be punishable by either death or imprisonment in the state's prison. Any other crime is a misdemeanor."

In general, felonies are crimes that are of a more serious nature than misdemeanors. The distinction is more or less arbitrary, because the statutes have added to the list of felonies some crimes that are generally not considered serious and to the list of misdemeanors some crimes that are by many persons considered quite serious.

Police officers, as well as private persons, have difficulty in remembering whether a particular crime is a felony or a misdemeanor.

A private person observes another wrongfully breaking into the home of his neighbor. May he arrest the person without a warrant?

Yes. It is a felony to break into the home of another without authority. The act was committed within the presence of the private person making the arrest.

A private person is passing a home. He hears shouts of "Help! He is murdering me." May he break open and enter the home to prevent the commission of murder?

Yes. A North Carolina statute says "All persons are authorized to break open and enter a house to prevent a felony about to be committed therein."

This is the last of a series of articles which have appeared weekly during the past three months. They have been written for the non-lawyer as a public service of the North Carolina Bar Association. Another series will be started in the fall.

Boy Scouts Urge All to Display U.S. Flags

The nation's five million Cub Scouts, Boy Scouts, Explorers and adult leaders embark on a campaign to encourage all citizens to fly the United States Flag at their homes on holidays. The Boy Scouts of America has always required its members to know the history of the United States Flag and the proper ways to show respect for it.

About 200 patrons were routed from a Philadelphia movie theater during a Brigitte Bardot film when smoke filled the building. Firemen said the air conditioner overheated.
