Do You Blame McGuire For Leaving?

So, Frank McGuire says goodbye to University of North Carolina basketball.

Do you blame him? I don't.

The genial Irishman from Brooklyn was hired by UNC authorities nine years ago to do a job... specifically to win basketball games and to beat arch rival N.C. State on the cage court.

McGuire's crowd changed that, beating State in the first meeting of the two coaching masters, and the Tar Heels gained a 14-11 edge over the Wolfpack in the nine years, and the McGuire clubs racked-up a record of 164 wins and 58 losses, with one undefeated national championship team.

The coach, obviously, accomplished the task for which he was employed.

And the thanks he gets from the authorities who hired him was a lack of cooperation throughout his nine years at Carolina, and finally, a de-emphasis program which would run-off any self-respecting coach.

The change in basketball policy from "win" to "de-emphasis" hastened McGuire's departure at a time when many alumni and others felt he would not leave the school on-the-heels of the recent scandal revelations.

But, despite what some may think, McGuire didn't desert the Tar Heels. Instead, Carolina officials deserted McGuire and Tar Heel basketball in its time of need.

De-emphasis Was Final Blow

The de-emphasis policy simply was the final blow in the series of many the coach has lived through in nine years. The final season was the crowning one, of course, NCAA probation, suspension of two players in a free-for-all, failure of UNC officials to back-up McGuire in his statements about the fight, naming of Carolina players in the cage scandals, and finally de-emphasis.

He couldn't fight it any longer, and I can't blame him.

The school changed its mind about wanting a winning basketball team, taking away the means by which good teams are built... material and a good schedule. Carolina no longer needed McGuire for the purpose for which he was hired. So he left.

That new program now stares new coach Dean Smith squarely in the eyes and while he is happy with his opportunity and speaks optimistically, he knows that he, or anyone else, cannot recruit successfully and build a basketball winner under the conditions which now exist at Carolina.

The fact strikes home with the revelation that probably the finest freshman team McGuire recruited at Carolina decided to enroll elsewhere when the de-emphasis program was announced, weeks before McGuire left.

Smith is well-trained in his basketball background, playing for a national title team under Coach Phog Allen at Kansas, and assisting McGuire for three years. But he faces a thankless task of trying to continue the winning tradition of the past half-dozen seasons at Chapel Hill.

You still must have horses to win in this game of basketball... and Smith will have a terrible time trying to lure the horses into the Carolina stables with the brand of fodder the school officials are serving these days.

What Happened To UNC Coliseum?

I mentioned several paragraphs up that McGuire did not receive full cooperation of Carolina officials through his nine years at Carolina. The most poignant point of emphasis in that statement is the fact that the school failed to build a gym or a Coliseum worthy of the Tar Heel teams.

The club played its few home games in Woollen Gym, fine for intramural sports, but not suited for basketball, with only half of the student body permitted to attend each game.

Often there was talk about a new Coliseum for Carolina basketball. But talk didn't lay brick.

Authorities want to keep basketball on the campus. Then, one might ask why UNC powers-that-be didn't build the Tar Heels a decent place to play on the campus at Chapel Hill? That might have kept the Tar Heels at home, instead of running-around playing in far-away places and against the intersectional foes the de-emphasis edict has decided constitute bad company.

Little League Sponsors WCL Game Here Between Owls And Colonels

The Kings Mountain Little League will sponsor a Western Carolina League game between the Statesville Owls and the Shelby Colonels here on Thursday night, August 17.

The game will be a regulation contest between the pair of Class D foes and will be played at City Stadium at 7:45.

Tickets are now on sale and Little League players will make a house-to-house canvass ticket sale on Friday night of this week. The local Little League program will receive a share in the gate and the money will be used to help defray the cost of operating the eight-team Little League here this summer.

Little League Commissioner Bob Maner worked out the plans for the sponsorship of the WCL game with the owners of the two clubs, Fleete McCurdy of States-

Mountaineers Open Grid Drills Tuesday

BY NEALE PATRICK Football becomes king again on the Kings Mountain sports scene next week. Coach John Gamble has issued the call for the opening of the autumn grid drills at 8:30 Tuesday morning, August 15, and he expects one of the largest football turnouts in local prep history.

The Mountaineers will be able to use for the first time boys who will attend Kings Mountain High school from Grover and Bethware under the new consolidation and the new players will greatly swell the number of candidates.

Gamble issued a list of 74 boys who signed last spring of their intentions to play football this fall. That list includes youths from all three high schools

(Kings Mountain, Bethware and Grover). The bulk of the list are holdovers from the Mountaineer varsity and junior varsity of last season, but a number of boys from the two outlying areas will give football their first whirl this autumn.

"We are happy to have the former Bethware and Grover boys with us this year and look forward to having them participate in the athletic program at Kings Mountain High School," said Coach Gamble in announcing the list of prospects from the two schools.

While state high school athletic regulations do not permit the beginning of practice sessions until August 15, other details in connection with the drills will be handled Saturday and Monday.

Physical examinations will be given at the High School Gymnasium at 1:30 Monday afternoon, and all players must take the exams before they will be permitted to practice. A meeting of all candidates with the coaches will be held following the examinations. Actual drills will start at 8:30 Tuesday morning and afternoon practice will be held at 4 o'clock. The two-per-day sessions will continue until the latter part of the following week when teachers report for pre-school sessions.

School opens on August 28. The Mountaineers will have slightly over three weeks of practice time before the opening game against Forest City here on Friday night, September 8.

Coach Gamble again will be assisted by Bill Bates and Don Parker, with Fred Withers also joining the staff as Jayvee coach when school opens.

Boys in the tenth, 11th and 12th grades will play on the varsity team, with eighth and ninth grade youths participating on a junior high team which will participate in a new Southwest Junior High Conference, playing six grid games against members of the circuit. North succeeded Kiwanis as the regular-season champion of the league, with a 13-1 mark. Burmil was two games back with an 11-3 record, and Parkgrace was another two games back at 9-and-5.

The final standings in the eight-team league determined the pairings for the tournament this week.

North capped its final game, scoring the winning run on three errors in the last of the sixth inning to defeat Raiders, 6-5, on Thursday. Philip Cash hurled a one-hitter and obtained two of his team's knocks in the victory.

Burmil clinched second place in the race, defeating Parkgrace 7-4, in a game played on Wednesday. The winners obtained only one hit, a single by Keith Carroll in the four-run second inning explosion. North's regular season Little League championship and defending tournament winners fell back into the loser's bracket of the current post-season tourney Tuesday night, losing to Parkgrace, 3-1. The loss now forces the pennant-winners and defending playoff winners to cop five straight games if they hope to add the playoff title to the crowns the team has won in the past two summers.

Tuesday's defeat for North was the second straight night that one of the top two clubs in the season's race fell in the double-elimination tournament. Second-place Burmil lost to Raiders, 4-0, on Monday night.

The tourney will continue nightly until the middle of next week, with two losses eliminating a club.

Jimmy Medlin clubbed a two-run homer in the first inning to give Parkgrace the necessary runs for the win over North Tuesday night. The blow came with Gene Putnam aboard. Parkgrace added an insurance run in the fifth. Steve Belt made the other two hits for Parkgrace.

Ramsey struck out nine Raider batters while Alexander whiffed seven Burmil stickers.

Ratterree's Wagon Stolen And Found

Pride Ratterree, Kings Mountain native, and football assistant at The Citadel, had an unusual experience while attending the North Carolina coaching clinic at Greensboro last week.

His station wagon, belonging to The Citadel, was stolen and recovered by police before Ratterree knew the automobile was gone.

He parked the wagon in the parking lot near the dormitory in which he was residing during the clinic and hours later was notified by police that the car apparently had been stolen by a couple of young men.

A highway patrolman stopped the boys for speeding between Greensboro and High Point, and it turned out that they had taken the car from the parking lot.

Thus the station wagon was stolen and recovered before the KM native realized anything was amiss.
