

Teen Democrats Set Convention

RALEIGH -- Representatives from Cleveland County are expected to register for the Second Annual Teen-Dem Convention slated for North Carolina State College, June 14-15.

The youthful delegates, rising high school freshmen, sophomores, juniors and seniors, will participate in workshops, discuss current political issues, write their own resolutions, and elect their own officers. The entire convention will follow the format used by state and national Democrats.

The delegates will stay on the campus where all convention activities will be held. Adult advisors will consist of YDC and other party officials. John Hughes, State Teen-Dem President, from Pollocksville will preside over the convention sessions. Application blanks for those eligible to attend may be obtained from State Democratic Headquarters.
