You know, it is phenominal how a few victories by a particular basketball team can change the complexion of

Well, the Davidson Wildcats are presently holding claim to the title "The Most Instigating Force To Hit North Carolina Sports Since The Days of Everrett Case, Frank McGuire, Vic Bubas, and Bones McKinney.

Now rest assured, there aren't too many schools throughout the nation which can compete for this coveted title, and to be perfectly frank there aren't many, regardless of geographical location, which would even attempt

During the past 16 years, North Carolina has been regarded as being the most productive state in the U.S. with regards to producing high caliber basketball.

It all began back in 1947 when Everrett Case came to the N. C. State campus, and brought his basketball team with him. Case and his fine teams began to make sports history in the Old North State by winning basketball games, and drawing national attention to this area.

The ever-popular Dixie Classics were outgrowths of Case's production of fine basketball teams, and it wasn't long until UNC, Duke, and Wake Forest followed suit in producing high caliber basketball teams also.

Now the Southern Conference has produced a nationally ranked North Carolina team, Davidson, The Wildcats are every bit as good as the national rankings indicate. They are presently ranked No. 4.

Davidson's head coach, Lefty Dressell has done basically the same thing as did Case. He came to Davidson four year ago, and although he didn't bring his team with him at that particular time, he has managed to assemble one of the best basketball teams in the nation today.

Although Davidson has produced some fine basketball teams in the past, this year's team is the only one which has been able to attain national acclaim, and the basketball fans in the Piedmont section of the state are really showing their enthusiasm. There aren't many teams that could draw 11,000 fans to Charlotte Coliseum for a single basketball game, but Davidson did it a week or so ago when the Wildcats played Virginia. And I understand that trying to buy a ticket to a Davidson basketball game is like trying to land a position on the Davidson starting lineup, and that would be next to impossible.

One other aspect which should be brought to the attention of the Davidson followers is the fact that four of this year's starting team will be back next year. One Davidson fan jokingly commented a few days ago that he was having trouble obtaining tickets for the '65-66 season, and to be truthful, he may not have been too far off in his statement.

It is always a feather in the hats of a school's alumni when the school produces a good athletic team, and the Davidson alumni have been no exception. And they aren't the only excited ones. Even the staunch Duke, Carolina, and Wake Forest fans are jumping on the Davidson bandwagon. The only exception being in the case of the Duke fans, who are holding their breath until after the Davidson-Duke game at Durham February 15.

By the way, the Davidson-Duke game will not be televised. The game can be seen on closed circuit television at to a 53-41 upset win over Cherthe Davidson campus, and there is a good reason why the syville.

Vanderbilt Scores In National Race

Although Vanderbilt has only been recognized as an outsanding basketball power for only a few short months, the Nashville, Tenn. school has produced some real fine basketball teams throughout the years.

Back in 1946-'47 Vanderbilt spent its last year as a basketball midget, and since that time the Commodores have been growing in stature and this year have reached the giant class having defeated Duke, 97-92 and Kentucky,

Vanderbilt's surprise upset over Duke in December opened the eyes of basketball fans throughout the South- G-Gilbert land. And a few weeks later the Kentucky Wildcats fell G Cadwallader victim to the Commodores.

Roy Skinner, 33-year-old head coach at Vanderbilt, played his collegiate basketball at Presbyterian in the ell Brown, Moss 4, Rhybe Beck 2. early 50's and became acting head mentor at Vandy in 1958 following a heart attack suffered by head coach Bob Polk. Polk returned to guide Vanderbilt for the next two years before his assistant, Skinner, inherited the job in G Goforth

Polk directed the Commodores from 1947 to 1961 and Fhis coaching career was studded with accomplishments as F-Cook Vandy inched forward toward national recognition. His teams won 197 games and lost 106, took the Southeastern Cherryville (41) Conference tournament in 1951 when they upset mighty Kentucky's national champion, and finished second five times in the conference race behind the Kentuckians.

Skinner continued to produce good teams after taking F—Hager over the head coaching duties, but, until this year, his teams didn't make the so caled "big time". Prior to this year, his finest team was last year's which finished fourth in the conference and won the 1962 Poinsettia Holiday Tournament at Greenville, S. C.

Skinner's present team was ranked the best in school history even before its notable 85-83 victory over Kentucky at Nashville, January 6.

It wasn't the first time the young looking Skinner had prevailed over the master Adolph Rupp of Kentucky. Coach Rupp went to Nashville in January seeking his 695th victory, but went away with his 136th defeat. And again during the 1958 season acting-coach Skinner turned the trick and defeated Rupp, 75-66, and last year Skinners' team downed Rupp's boys, 69-67 for Vanderbilt's first win at Lexington since 1932.

Another factor regarding the Vandy team is the fact day night's bowling action.

Coach Skinner only dresses 10 players for games although several other players are attending school with athletic scholarships. Vandy's second team can score well, and this was shown in December when Vanderbilt met South Carolina in the holiday tournament.

When the Commodore coach felt his regulars had a comfortable lead over the Gamecocks in the final game of the tournament, he summoned his second team. They scored 42 points in nine-and-a-half minutes as Vanderbilt
