

MORE ABOUT Masters Golf
Boros, the national open king; Bo Winger; and Dow Finsterlin, who has had several narrow escapes in capturing the Masters Crown.

The entire course tends to slope downward towards the southeast, and Raes Creek, which is well known at the Masters, plays an integral part in the golfer's bids for the title.

The run of holes beginning with ten and running through thirteen is surely unparalleled anywhere. The players leave the tenth green and file back into the woods to the eleventh tee. They play out of the woods into a dogleg left that carries into the part of the course dominated by Raes Creek. The eleventh green is bordered by the stream. No. 12 is a par three across the creek to a thin green that is hard to hold. From here the players go back into the edge of the woods to the thirteenth tee. This is a par five hole that features two shots over the creek with the water and woods protecting the left dogleg in the fairway. Fans planning to attend this year's tournament can easily see these mentioned holes because the lay of the land is such that one can witness the action on all of these holes by moving approximately fifty yards along the side of a hill.

Answers to Sports Quiz

- Cobb was caught 38 times in his record year, a major league record for failures. Wills was nabbed by enemy catchers only 13 times.
- Ted Williams and Rogers Hornsby.
- a, b, c, d, and e were righties.
- Joe McCarthy of the Yankees in 1939. His team won, 3-1. Four years later, McCarthy silenced critics by saying the American League could win without the Yankees and played a whole All-Star game without one of his stars. The Americans won, 5-3.
- Al Lopez. He piloted Cleveland from 1951-56 and the Chicago White Sox from the start of 1957. In those years, he had two pennant winners, seven second place finishes, a third, a fourth, and a fifth.
- Yes and no. The catchers mitt can be of any size, shape of weight, but the other players gloves have restrictions.
- The Derby, founded in 1933, is held at Akron, Ohio.
- Tony Trabert did it in 1955. Since then, Australians have dominated the event.
- Frank Gifford of the New York Giants.
- Who else, Willie Mays did the trick. He hit his homers in 1961.
