E Wool Contest Plans Given

Now is the time to enter the "Make-It-Yourself With Wool" contest which will be at N. C. State, Oct. 31.

Miss Mary Em Lee, Extension clothing specialist at N. C. State, says girls 10-21 years of age can enter the contest. Just request an application blank from the county home economics agent and make your plans to enter your woolen garment. Your application form must be in Raleigh by Oct. 19.

This has proven to be a popular fall contest for many young Tarheel girls. Contestants will be divided into three groups — 10-13, 14-17, and 18-21. There will be no division for adults and the 10-13 age group will only be judged on the state level. But the top winners in the other two groups will compete in the area finals to be held in Raleigh, Nov. 20-21.

Winning fashion ensembles are selected on the basis of workmanship, beauty of design, suitability of the individual, and general fashion values.

When you go to buy your fabric, check the label on the bolt to get information on the fabric. The fabric may contain 5 per cent of another fabric or fur and be accepted in the contest. The following related fibers are accepted as wool under the Wool Act: Mohair, Cashmere, Alpaca, Llama, Camel's hair, Guanaco, and Vicuna. More than 5 per cent of these fibers may be present in your fabric.

Interfacings, facing linings and underlinings need not be wool. The garments must be made of 100 percent loomed-in-America wool. However, it can be bonded to tetric or foam.

Following the area contest Nov. 20-21 for the girls in the

Savings Bond Quiz

Q — I have a rather large number of Series "E" bonds that I purchased in 1953 and 1954. When will these bonds mature and what is the interest rate? I think it was 3 per cent to begin with.

A — In all probability, your bonds have passed their first maturity date and now are in the 10-year extension period which they were accorded. Bonds issued at that time had an original maturity period of nine years and eight months. The interest rate on your bonds was increased effective June 1, 1959, for their remaining period to maturity, and in the extension period they are drawing 3 1/2 per cent, compounded semi-annually.

Q — My son will have enough Savings Stamps to buy a bond in a few weeks. Where do we turn them in for a bond?

A — Any bond issuing agent (bank), will accept Savings Stamps presented in payment for a Savings Bond. Post Offices do not issue Savings Bonds but will redeem stamps for cash. The stamps should not be presented loose, but affixed in an album.

Q — I am smart enough to know that U. S. Savings Bonds are as sound as our country. Aside from that, what is it that makes them such a good investment?

A — First of all, your principal investment and rate of return are guaranteed. Then, there is the added advantage you do not have to report your interest earnings on E bonds for tax purposes until such time as you cash your bonds or they reach final maturity. Under existing regulations, this would be 17 years and nine months. Even then, this interest is not subject to State or local income taxes. Another fine feature about Savings Bonds is the fact that when they are lost or stolen, the Treasury replaces them without charge.

Q — I understand that Savings Bonds cannot be pledged as collateral, but can they be used as security for performance of an obligation?

A — No; and for the very same reason, Savings Bonds can be cashed only by the person in whose name they are registered (except, of course, in isolated cases of guardians or custodians legally authorized to act for the bond owner.) This is another built-in safety feature for owners of bonds.
