Warm Bodies And Dry Feet Help Chickens

A warm body and dry feet will help keep Junior a well boy during the chill of winter. The same preventives work pretty well with chickens, too.

The difficulty with both boy and fowl is in maintaining this warm-dry condition. It isn't easy for a mother with active youngsters, neither is it easy for a poultryman with drafty broiler houses and a tight budget.

Better constructed poultry houses that are insulated against the elements are the solution for the broiler producer. His dilemma, especially in North Carolina, is whether he can economically justify insulated houses.

"There isn't much question for the producer in Raine, for example, points out Ray Ritchie, extension agricultural engineering specialist at North Carolina State. "He generally accepts the requirement of insulated houses."

"But our producers must weigh several factors in making their decision since our winter isn't as severe and pressure to modernize housing facilities isn't as great."

One factor that may help the Tar Heel make up his mind is the superior winter performance of birds in areas to the north over those grown in this state.

"Statistics show that, with insulated houses, birds in these northern areas perform better than those grown here," said Ritchie. "Disease is less of a problem and feed conversion is better."

The engineering specialist explained that he doesn't make insulating broiler houses a blanket recommendation for all Tar Heel poultrymen. "Each individual case may be different. In some cases insulating existing houses may not be economically feasible."

"However, the trend is toward insulating. We have seen examples where producers saved as much as two to three cents per bird in insulated houses. One producer told me the insulation he installed paid for itself in one year through better bird performance and fuel savings. Some of our growers say they can gain up to 20 points in their feed conversion rate. Others have indicated they have experienced as much as a 50 per cent savings in fuel cost."

Only a small percentage of the broiler houses in North Carolina are insulated. "But more of the houses are being insulated as they are built than ever before," Ritchie said. "The real decision is with the producer who has existing houses. Should he or

Major Drop In Heart Toll Is Forecast

ATLANTIC CITY — Surgeons have been trying for many years to rearrange blood vessels to increase the supply of blood to a heart whose coronary vessels are narrowed or blocked by disease. A number of different procedures have been developed, but thus far none has won widespread acceptance by the medical profession.

At the Scientific Sessions of the American Heart Association, Dr. William H. Sewell of Veterans Administration Hospital in Oteen, N. C., reported on a series of 78 operations performed on patients with severely disabling coronary disease since 1962. Sixty-eight of the 78 patients are alive, he said, and most are considerably improved.

The procedure, Dr. Sewell said, incorporates knowledge gained both at Oteen and elsewhere through previous efforts to solve the problem. It involves transplanting and embedding in the heart muscle an artery (the internal mammary) normally located behind the breast bone, together with neighboring muscle, veins and connective tissue. The total transplant is called a pedicle.

Dr. Sewell told the scientists and physicians at the national heart disease meeting, "Although this operation cannot be expected to offer the final answer to the problem of coronary disease (which takes the lives of nearly half a million Americans yearly), there is every reason to expect that it will lead directly to a major drop in the death rate from coronary disease during the next ten years. Further studies are being done on the use of drugs for dilating coronary arteries (thereby increasing blood flow to the heart). So far it looks like a combination of the operation and drugs can be developed to the point where it will decrease the death rate from coronary disease in the young and middle-aged to considerably below half of what it is now."

The Sewell studies have been supported by research grants from the American Heart Association.

shouldn't he insulate?"

Producers hesitate at investing 15 to 20 cents per square foot to insulate a house that only cost 25 to 30 cents or even the more typical 50 cents per square foot to build.

It is important that the producer consider not only the cost of putting in insulation and whatever vapor barriers and means of ventilation that may be needed, but this cost plus the cost of preparing the house for insulating must be figured.

Dennis Smith, Doug Mercier Star In Little Mounties' Fourth Win

Halfback Dennis Smith and quarterback Doug Mercier starred in the Little Mountainers' fourth win Thursday afternoon, a 27-0 defeat of Cherryville. Smith carried a punt return 70 yards into the Cherryville end zone and Mercier scored twice.

In the first quarter Cherryville, unable to gain any yardage in their first series of downs, punted. Smith took the punt on the Kings Mountain 30 and raced all the way to pay dirt for the first score. Fullback Chip Crisp kicked the conversion, and the Little Mounties had an early 7-0 lead.

Chip Crisp and Dennis Goforth carried the ball from the Cherryville 41 to the 6 on long runs, and Mercier, on a quarterback sneak, went into the end zone with the second score, also in the first quarter. Crisp's conversion attempt was wide, and the score stood 13-0.

Crisp hit the end zone in the third quarter, after a fumble recovery by Stanley Laughter and a 15-yard run by Smith, making the score 19-0. Crisp also kicked the conversion, Mounties leading 20-0.

Mercier hit the scoring column again in the fourth period, pulling a two-yard quarterback sneak. Paul Gaffney kicked the conversion and the Mounties won 27-0.

Stanley Laughter, Paul Gaffney, and David Leftwich were defensive standouts for Coach Bob Hussey's Little Mountainers. Leftwich, Laughter, and Tom Philbeck recovered three Cherryville fumbles and Mercier and Gaffney intercepted one pass each.

"I was well pleased with the effort put forth by the team," said Coach Hussey, "the boys have worked hard all year. They deserve much credit."

The Little Mounties, who have a record of 4-1-1, play host to Lincolnton November 12 in their last contest of the season. The game will begin at 4:00.

Mr. Winchester stated that President Johnson signed into law on October 13, 1964 an amendment to the present non-service connected disability and dependent pension law which allows certain changes in amounts of pension, also certain disabled veterans drawing aid and attendance may be furnished certain medicines. This law will also permit certain veterans who served between October 8, 1940 and December 31, 1956 to apply for new insurance or add on to any service insurance they have up to a maximum amount of $10,000. The new pension law changes will go into effect on January 1, 1965 and the new insurance cannot be granted until May 1, 1965.

Belk's Gets Sixth Annual "Green Thumb"

Bill Brown, manager of Belk's here, has been advised that the boy's wear department of the local store, and this department in the other stores of the Belk group of department stores, has been awarded the highest honor in the boy's wear industry.

On October 20 the Boys' Apparel and Accessories Manufacturers' Association, Inc. presented its sixth annual "Green Thumb" Award to the Belk organization. This Award credits the Belk stores with having contributed most to the growth of the boys' wear industry in 1963.

The Award recognizes and pays tribute to Belk's boys' departments as being among the most outstanding in the country. Particular credit for this was given to the dedicated buyer and sales personnel, and the variety, the outstanding values and the style leadership of the merchandise available in the boys' department. Tribute was also paid to Belk's success in the development of new styles, colors and fabrics exclusively available through the Dixie Lad and other private Belk brands.

Presentation of the Award was made at a dinner at the Statler-Hilton Hotel in New York before 800 members of the boys' wear trade. It climaxed a program that included a professionally staged showing of boys' and teenage fashions for next spring. Several coordinated outfits designed exclusively for the Belk stores were shown.

John M. Belk, president of the Belk department stores, accepted the Award "on behalf of our stores and their more than 400 outstanding boys' departments and boys' wear buyers."

He said, "The rightful credit for the growth of our boys' departments belongs to a team of dedicated merchants and store builders who have made boys' wear an important part of our stores since their founding 76 years ago."

Mr. Belk has written Mr. Brown that a replica of this "Green Thumb" Award is being made for display in the boys' wear department of Belk's here.

"It was an honor for me to accept this Award on your behalf," Mr. Belk wrote. "You, your boys' wear buyer, the personnel of your boys' wear department, and the faithful customers of your boys' wear department really won this Award for our group of stores. This is a once-in-a-lifetime honor, and adds prestige and stature to your boys' wear department."

Previous winners have been R. H. Macy & Co., The May Department Stores Co.; Gimbel Brothers; Federated Department Stores; and Lord & Taylor.

Mr. Brown stated that he is proud of this honor and of the important contribution made by the local boys' department to the winning of this Award. Bob Huldener is boys' wear buyer of Belk's here.
