School Desegregation Is Here, Poses Numerous Administrative Problems

Politics Quiet; Dixon May Make Comeback Try

By MARTIN HARMON

Mayor Glee A. Bridges, seeking a sixth term, remained the lone formal candidate for city office this week.

John H. Moss, who said last week he is seriously considering bidding for the mayoral post, stated Wednesday he would make a decision not later than February 17.

Meantime, former Mayor Kelly Dixon, who upset Mayor Bridges in 1961, then lost to him in 1963, also was reported considering a third bid for the city's top executive post.

Other political activity was outwardly nil.

Ward 5 City Commission J. E. (Zip) Rhea, as Ward 1 Commissioner Ray Cline last week, said Wednesday he had not discussed the upcoming May election with other members of the administration but presumed all members of the incumbent administration would offer.

Mr. Rhea, himself, again as Mr. Cline, said he was weighing a decision on offering for a third term.

Other incumbent commissioners are Norman King, Ward 4; T. J. (Tommy) Ellison, Ward 3; and Eugene Goforth, Ward 2.

Another office open is for an in-city school trusteeship, the six-year term of Mrs. Lena W. McGill expiring.

Mr. Moss, the Western Carolina League president, said Wednesday, "I have received encouragement to offer for Mayor far beyond my expectations, by telephone, by personal visit, and in meeting citizens on the street. I naturally appreciate this encouragement very much, and I will reach a decision on whether to make the race no later than February 17."

First Union Pledges $2000, Jaycees $1000 For Stadium

PRESIDENT — W. S. Fulton, Jr., has been elected president of the Kings Mountain Kiwanis club for 1965-66. He succeeds R. S. Lennon.

$48,358 Pledged; Century Club Is Organized

Pledges and cash contributions to the John Gamble Stadium fund reached a reported total of $48,358.88 Wednesday.

Charles Blanton, chairman of the business solicitations committee, announced a $2000 pledge from First Union National Bank of North Carolina, and on Tuesday night the Kings Mountain Junior Chamber of Commerce pledged $1000, one-third payable immediately from proceeds of the club's recent Christmas tree sale.

Charles F. Harry, III, secretary-treasurer of the solicitation committee, reported cash receipts to date of $5708.88.

Mr. Harry said checks had been received from Jack W. Ferree, J. O. Plonk, Jr., Plonk Brothers & Company, Inc., Dilling Heating Company, Storch's, William J. Kay, Doris B. Kay, Mrs. Carl Finger, Mrs. Grady Howard, Mrs. Juanita M. Logan, and Foote Mineral Company.

Meantime, a sub-committee of solicitors, including civic club presidents, the Bethware Progressive Club president, and Football Coach Bill Bates, in charge of school faculty solicitations, announced formation of the "John Gamble Stadium Century Club", with individual contributions of $100 or more qualifying the donor for membership. The contribution may be made over a three-year period. A pledge card is published on Page 3 of today's Herald. The cards are also in the hands of several club presidents. Checks and cards should be mailed to Post-office Box 472, Kings Mountain.

Goal of the campaign is $80,000.

Efforts are being made to complete the campaign by early spring in order that construction may begin and the stadium ready for use by the opening of the football season in September.

A 4000 seat stadium, also designed for track, is envisioned on the south side of the new high school plant on Phifer Road. The high school plant is scheduled for completion by August 1.

Federal Funds Hinge On Plan Suitable To HEW

By MARTIN HARMON

The Kings Mountain district board of education will consider in the near future adoption of a pupil assignment plan which will conform with the federal 1964 civil rights act, and 2) cause least interruption and inconvenience to school pupils, their parents, faculty members and citizens generally.

Technically, a prior decision required is to decide whether to sign an agreement with the Department of Health Education and Welfare to comply with the civil rights act in school operations, a prerequisite to receiving any federal funds for school operations.

There is no question but that the Kings Mountain board will sign the agreement.

The North Carolina attorney-general, Wade Branton, and the assistant attorney-general handling education matters, warned local officials and others throughout the state recently that the HEW agreement is a tricky one. They added, and said it publicly Monday, that complete segregation of the schools is here, whether or not the schools sign the agreement to assure federal funds.

If one section of the civil rights act does not accomplish desegregation—such as the funds provision—another does, the state officials said.

Superintendent B. N. Barnes said there are several plans, thought to comply with HEW requirements, being mulled over by school officials here and elsewhere, among them:

- 1) Pupil assignment by geography, with pupil permission to select another school than the one assigned, within limits of classroom space.
- 2) Free pupil option, with any pupil enrolling in any school he wishes, again within space limitations. Should a particular school (presumably a particular grade) become overloaded via free option, then the board of education would assign "on its own good judgment" to restore teaching load balance.
- 3) Firm assignment of all pupils in a particular geographical district, the district lines drawn on basis of attendance averages. Should there be two schools within one district, pupil option would be employed as a choice of school.
- 4) Assignment of pupils entering the first grade to schools nearest their homes.

Mr. Barnes said there are other plans, as well as variations to the four he outlined.

Quick action by the Kings Mountain board may be dictated more than for others.

The board has not yet spent its current year National Defense Act federal grants, with intent to use this money for purchase of science equipment for the new high school. But January 3 past was deadline for using these funds, minus the HEW agreement.

The desegregation problem is compounded, Mr. Barnes said, by concurrent problems of classroom space, transport of pupils, faculty assignments and others, Supt. Barnes noted.

Sewage Plant Engineering Begins; Main: Margrace Plant Underway

W. K. Dickson & Company, Charlotte engineering firm, has started preliminary work on planning a sewage disposal system to serve the western portion of the city, in accordance with agreement with the State Stream Sanitation committee.

Meantime, Massachusetts Mohair Plush Company, is well underway on meeting its agreement with the state committee to clean its waste water containing dyes.

Al Maine, general manager, said Wednesday the method of cleaning calls for aeration and chemical treatment of the effluent, to be accomplished by dumping the effluent into two lagoons.

He said sewer lines have been installed and that remaining work involves installation of about 200 feet of sewer line and the building of the two lagoons.

He said his firm is meeting the contracted timetable, which required that part of the work be completed by the recent New Year's Day.

The city's contract calls for reports and plans to be filed with the State Stream Sanitation committee by April 1, with construction to be started by next January 1, and the treatment plant in operation by January 1, 1967.

Mayor Glee A. Bridges said Wednesday the engineering firm had completed aerial surveys of the western area, first step in the planning process.

The western portion of the city is in the Broad River Basin. The eastern portion, served by a modern treatment plant built in 1954, is in the Catawba River basin.

The city's long-overlooked Imhoff-type sewage disposal tanks were condemned in the late forties by the North Carolina Health department. Subsequent legislation established the stream sanitation committee and teeth was added to the law which enables the committee to force cities, industries and individuals to provide for adequate sewage treatment.

Is Saturday '65 Snow Day?

A few years ago, snow fell on several consecutive Wednesdays. Anno Domini 1964 seems to be varying the pattern, with Saturdays as "snow day".

For the second consecutive Saturday, snow whitened the surroundings, glazed the streets and lowered traffic volume to a minimum.

Accompanied by freezing temperatures which hit the teens at night, the snow and ice kept fuel dealers hopping on a seven-day week basis, with plenty of overtime, and had service operators appending chains to auto wheels.

Warmer breezes had arrived Wednesday afternoon.
