BABY'S COLIC NOT MOTHER'S FAULT

Chicago, Ill. (WMNS) — Mothers, you are not to blame if your new-born baby develops colic. This news comes from Dr. Jack L. Paradise, pediatrician of the Bellaire Clinic, Bellaire, Ohio. Dr. Paradise told colleagues attending a recent meeting here of the American Academy of Pediatrics that in a study of 146 mothers and their new-borns he could find little evidence that the emotional state, intelligence, education, or attitudes of mothers caused babies to get colic.

Some infants got it although their mothers were "cheerful nonworriers," the doctor noted. Other babies whose mothers were quite anxious did not get it. Nor did colic seem related to nausea during pregnancy, disappointment with the baby's sex, maternal age or parental allergy. He urged physicians to dispel such erroneous notions so as to relieve the new mother's anxiety.

WHITE HOUSE CONFERENCE PUSHES FAMILY PLANNING

Washington, D. C. (WMNS) — At a recent White House Conference on Health, physician-members of a panel on family planning made the following recommendations:

- * Every woman who wants it should be given birth control information when she has her check-up following childbirth.
- * Family planning should be part of every hospital's out-patient service.
- * Family planning information and service should be an integral part of medical care plans.
- * Social workers should be permitted to discuss family planning with their clients as they now discuss a variety of other family matters.

TRAGEDY: FAILURE TO IMMUNIZE

Blackburn, England (WMNS) — Are you and your family properly immunized against polio?

Are your immunizations up-to-date?

The answer should be yes — or tragedy can strike as it did in this bustling city not so long ago. An outbreak of the disease took the life of a teenage girl and hospitalized 18 other residents. After the epidemic subsided, public health authorities vaccinated seven-eighths of the population of 110,000 people. But, noted chief medical officer Dr. John Ardley, this was prevention after the fact. Hardly any of those stricken had been immunized before the outbreak.

Veteran's Corner

EDITOR'S NOTE: Below are authoritative answers by the Veterans Administration to some of the many current questions from former servicemen and their families. Further information on veterans benefits may be obtained at any VA office.

Q—When I purchased my home through a GI loan, I was told that my monthly payments would be a certain amount. Now my mortgage company has notified me of an increase in my monthly payments. Why?

A—In most cases, monthly payments are made up of principal and interest and a monthly deposit for payment of taxes and hazard insurance premiums. The principal and interest portion of your payment will not change through the life of the loan. However, the monthly deposit to pay taxes and insurance may increase or decrease depending upon whether your real estate tax or hazard insurance premium is increased or decreased.

Q—Could you please tell me about Orphans Education Assistance? I am a veteran with a 30% service-connected disability and I have two sons who are 12 and 13 years old. I would like to know if they are eligible for educational assistance from the Veterans Administration?

A—In order for the children of a living veteran to be eligible for benefits under the War Orphans Education Assistance Program, the veteran must be permanently rated 100% service-connected disabled. Should your disability become worse, you should check with the VA regional office.

Agriculture In Action

CULTIVATING GOOD LAWS

Although this is a farm column, you won't catch us too often talking about things like how much fertilizer you ought to put on your crops.

Not that this isn't important. It's just that the research and extension fellows over at N. C. State University do a mighty fine job of working up improved production techniques, and letting you know what they are.

Applying modern practices in your farming operation is an essential part of making money. But it's not the only part. That's where Farm Bureau comes in. And that's usually where we start talking.

The point we're trying to get across was phrased admirably by a speaker at the recent annual meeting of the Sweet Potato Council of the United States. "Farmers mustn't make the mistake of staying in the potato patch too much," he told an audience of yam growers.

Wish we'd said that. Since we didn't, we'll just be content to build on what that gentleman was attempting to get across.

He meant that farmers, despite the fact that their living comes from the soil, must raise their eyes occasionally to scrutinize what's happening beyond the farm boundaries. Too many farmers have learned this lesson the hard way. They have watched the weather and planted at the right time. They have carefully measured out the fertilizer rate. They have harvested when the crop hit its peak of ripeness. Then they have looked up, too late, to discover a new nation and a new world, operating according to new laws written by new people. The potato patch turned out not to be a remote and independent island after all. So we let other folks talk about how to grow your crop. We just try to interest farmers in cultivating good laws.

Newspapers Produce Light And Information. Their Absence Results In Darkness.

Correct information is invaluable to a free people and for keeping a free people free.

Few other nations of the world are as fortunate as the United States, which, through the wisdom of their forefathers, is legate of a heritage of freedom of speech, of assembly, of religious worship, and of the press.

Maintaining of these freedoms has not always been easy, but they have nevertheless been maintained through the years.

A free press is the cornerstone of the others. Without the dissemination of the news — factual information gathered by trained professional newsmen — the other freedoms would soon be abrogated in practice, if not in the text of the United States Constitution.
