GARDEN TIME

This has been the coldest April in my memory in the Raleigh area. As I write this, April 15, we have had nearly two weeks of night temperatures close to the freezing point.

Patty Berg, and her touring pros, are playing golf in Raleigh this week. She arrived at the first tee yesterday wearing an overcoat and wise-cracked: "Let's get going, gals, before it snows." It was that cold, too.

I don't know what has happened to our weather but am blaming it on Chick Carney, our amiable and efficient weatherman who was involved in a serious auto accident about two months ago. Perhaps things will clear up when he gets back in circulation.

With all the adverse weather, though, we can't complain too much. Azaleas, dogwood, tulips and Japanese cherries are beautiful. Jonquils have finished blooming and red and gold-embell have passed their prime season of bloom. Flowers on wisteria, in many locations, were frozen and jonquils were shredded by hail in some sections of Wake County.

There are many things that can still bedone to spruce the place up a bit. Plant annuals and perennials in beds or borders. Don't forget to try Thumbelina zinnia this summer. It is low growing, beautiful and is especially good for bedding.

Also try Spun Yellow marigold. This new All-America selection is early and long flowering. It grows to a height of about 12 inches, has rich green foliage and stems of cutting length. This selection goes well with another All-America, Amethyst verben.

Window and porch boxes, pots, urns and wooden buckets and tubs can be used in a variety of places. If you have a stump of an old tree in the yard, about two or three feet high, place a tub of petunias, coleus or geraniums on it.

Fill hanging baskets with ivy, (many types for selection), wandering jew or purple lantern. Try geraniums; coleus, petunias and lobelia in well placed window boxes. Many interesting color combinations can also be worked out using combinations of these plants. Tuberos begonias make a beautiful show, planted alone. I shall never forget a window box of these plants I saw at a motel in the mountains several summers ago. Most colorful.

It only takes a little imagination to work out many novel ideas which you and your neighbors can enjoy all summer long. Remember, too, there is a plant for every purpose. Choose wisely.

Telephone Talk

By R. B. MOORE

Charlie Hardly Ever Calls Information

"When you've seen one phone book, you've seen them all." That's what some people say. And when a new one comes out, it goes on a shelf and everybody forgets it. Nancy may use it to press a corsage. Then Uncle Harry tells his favorite joke. "It's a dull book. Great cast of characters but no plot." Some people say you may as well joke about the directory. "Nobody needs it to look up phone numbers. Just call Information."

That's what some people say. But not Charlie. The directory in his home is by the phone and used all the time. It's marked, curled, worn . . . and Charlie likes it that way! He outlines his customers in red and copies important ones in a little book he carries. Charlie doesn't have time to call Information for numbers when he can keep them handy. "Why make two calls when one will do?" Mom uses black lines to mark the directory . . . makes it easy to pick out the grocery, the cleaners, and ladies in the bridge club. Jimmy and Judy mark the directory in their own special way. The arrows are Jimmy's. Judy sprinkles stars. The raspberry jam was added by the baby. That's how handy Charlie's directory is. And that's why Charlie hardly ever calls Information.
