Most of the heart trouble in children, according to the North Carolina Heart Association, is caused by untreated strep infection resulting in rheumatic fever.

BREATHING DEMONSTRATION — Central Junior High School had a rescue-breathing demonstration last week. James Harkins, from Waynesville, N. C., was on hand to teach the students how to use various means of rescue-breathing. Mr. Harkins teaches Rescue Squad Units around the state the various methods of rescue and offered his services to the school. Pictured above is Mr. Harkins (kneeling), Miss Sara Jones (physical education teacher), and Tina McSwain is practicing the mouth-to-mouth resuscitation. Catherine Owens watches closely from behind as Tina practices on dummy. Dummy's name is "Resusc-Ann", named by the inventor who lost his daughter. She fell into a lake and the persons who pulled her out didn't know how to administer artificial breathing and she died as a result. (Photo by Steve Martin).
