TROOP MEETING

Scott Wilson led the opening at Tuesday's meeting of Boy Scout Troop 91 at St. Matthew's Lutheran church. Instruction in tentfoot, second class and first class was given and plans were made for a weekend camping trip. The troop will meet at St. Matthew's church Friday at 4 p.m., announces Marshall Blanton, scribe.

Social Security Questions & Answers

Q—I am 60 years old and have been trying to establish my date of birth. I am having trouble finding any old documents. What do you suggest?

A—Your best bet would probably be a U. S. Census Record. You can bring the documents you have to our office and we will examine them. If we feel that further proof is needed, we will help you complete a request for a search of the census record. There is no charge for helping you.

Q—I got a letter from the social security office asking me if I wanted to sign up for Medicare and social security benefits. I am still working full time and do not plan to retire any time soon. Why should I sign up for Medicare and social security now?

A—You were asked if you want to apply for Medicare and social security benefits because our records show you will soon be age 65. Everyone who wants Medicare coverage should apply for it during the 3 months before the month of his 65th birthday to have full Medicare protection when he is 65. The fact that you are continuing to work does not affect your right to Medicare benefits.

As far as social security benefits are concerned, it is a good idea to file for them even if you are working. In this way, all the necessary paper work will be completed, and your benefits can start without delay as soon as you do retire.

"A Good Year"

For Famous Gardens

Unharmful by recent cold snaps, Charleston's Famous Gardens, already ablaze with multicolored camellias, are showing promise of the beauty of spring flowers to come.

C. Norwood Hastie Jr., spokesman for the gardens, termed the weather thus far ideal for a successful season. "There has been practically no damage from the cold he said. "Rainfall has been adequate, and the camellias are loaded with blooms and buds that indicate a prolonged flowering.

"Other touches of color — flowering peach and crabapple, quince and spirea — are just beginning to appear, and within a few days they will begin adding their beauty.

"It looks like a good year for the gardens," he added.

The trio of showplaces — Magnolia Gardens, Middleton Place and Cypress Gardens — annually attract thousands of visitors to the Carolina Lowcountry.

Middleton Place, oldest of the three, predates the Revolution and has been recognized by horticulturists and landscape architects as perhaps the finest formal garden in America. It lies just off Highway 61, the Scenic Route to Summerville, within a few miles of Charleston.

Nearer the city, and off the same highway, is Magnolia, which offers the greatest array of camellias in the Southeast. Lying along the Ashley River in an unparalleled setting, it attracts botanists and sightseers from over the world.

Cypress Gardens gives the impression of Nature at its most resplendent. Masses of azaleas, interspersed by handsome camellias, line the banks of ebony lakes from which rise the moss-laden trees that give the garden its name. Cypress is situated off Highway 52 north of the city.
