Taking A Breather: Health Bulletin From 1915 Gives Advice
 H. B. Rogers, P. R. man at the North Carolina Board of Health, has been digging into old Health Bulletins, and here is what he comes up with from Health Bulletin, Vol. XXX, Number 3, 1915:
 "Here are a few common sense directions guaranteed to be beneficial in ninety-five out of every one hundred cases of insomnia.
 "Get enough physical exercise during the day to tire you.
 "Go to bed at the first urgent invitation of Morpheus.
 "Be sure the bed is comfortable and the room is quiet.
 "Think pleasant thoughts.
 "Don't have the head of the bed lower than the foot.
 "Be sure there is no other livestock in bed with you; if there are, change boarding houses.
 "If you haven't bathed lately, try a good application of soap and warm water just before retiring. This is said to work wonders in more directions than one.
 "If your neighbor's cats also have insomnia, throw them a few Jackson crackers.
 "If this fails, a shotgun is known to be a sure remedy.
 "Eat supper at least two hours before retiring. Eat a light supper and take nothing indigestible.
 "Don't worry and don't take dope.
 "If you don't get to sleep right away and if you don't sleep quite as much as you think you should, remember that even lying awake in bed is very restful.
 "That's the advice of a 1915 Health Bulletin for getting to sleep. It seems to be pretty sound today... except... that one about the livestock, I wonder if that includes your wife?"
