Vary Chicken Dish By Serving In Variety Of Ways To Family

There are many reasons why the broiler-fryer has endeared itself to the American public, but the basic one is obvious — "It just plain tastes so good." During the holiday season your family may want chicken cooked in any number of ways, and it can be! It can be broiled, roasted, barbecued, simmered, and fried. Moreover, from the basic cooking categories spring such a large number of dishes that there is no way to tell exactly how many chicken dishes exist. Thanks to chickens versatility it appears at just about any culinary occasion, from the budget family meal to the most elegant formal dining party. Whether it is for a holiday treat for your friends or just for the family, chicken is bound to be delicious. When chicken really puts on party accessories — such as classic sauces, mushrooms, or other garnishes — the home cook can serve dishes fit for a king. No matter what kind of occasion it is — holiday season, Sunday dinner or any other time chicken is a welcomed guest at any time.

You might like to try the following recipes from some outstanding American women that have recently come to the N. C. Poultry Federation Headquarters in Raleigh. These recipes may be enjoyed during the holiday season or at any other time of the year.

OVEN FRIED CHICKEN
(From Mrs. Carl T. Curtis, wife of the U. S. Senator from Nebraska.)
1 frying chicken, cut in pieces
1 box "Cornflake Crumbs"
1 bottle Italian Salad Dressing
Use a pan with deep sides — completely lined with heavy-duty aluminum foil. Dip the chicken in the Italian Salad Dressing, shake gently, then roll in the crumbs. Place in the pan with skin side up and so the pieces do not touch. Do not add butter, salt, or any other seasoning. Bake in 350 degrees oven for 1 to 1½ hours. Do not turn the chicken.

CHICKEN SUPREME
(From Mrs. J. J. Howard, wife of Congressman Howard from New Jersey.)
4 chicken thighs
1 tablespoon of flour
Salt and pepper
Garlic salt to taste
2 tablespoons of vegetable oil
Can of Cream of Chicken soup
¾ cup of white cooking wine
Shake chicken in bag with flour, salt and pepper, and garlic salt. Brown in oil, add Cream of Chicken soup, wine, and a can of water, cover and cook over low heat one hour. Serve the gravy from the chicken over rice. Serves four.

GARDEN TIME

Is it unusual for a gardenia (Cape Jasmine) to bloom in October? Yes, it is, but there is a reason for this unusual late flowering and only a few buds are involved.

I was called to a friend's home who has three fine gardenia plants in his yard. Sure enough, there was a fine, fragrant flower. The plants were vigorous and healthy, and he wanted an explanation for the late single bloom.

This bloom was formed from a latent bud. These are buds which may remain inactive for a year or more and then forced into growth by some unusual stimulus in the plant.

While we are on the subject of buds, it should be of interest to know something about the different kinds of buds. It is also essential that we understand the bearing (flowering and fruiting) habits of plants before we can prune intelligently.

I am listing some of the different kinds of buds and giving some examples of the flowering and/or fruiting habits of some of the fruit and ornamental plants:

Some buds produce only leaves while others produce only flowers. We have both types on the peach tree.

Mixed buds produce both leaves and flowers and are usually referred to as fruit buds — apple, pear and grape.

Collateral buds — two or more buds that form in a group. Example: peach and plum.

Adventitious buds usually form near a wound. You may have observed water sprouts formed near a large wound resulting from pruning; or sprouts from ligustrum and abelia after heavy cutting back.

Next year's peach crop will come from buds produced on wood formed in 1969. We speak of this as being one year wood. They are borne to a lesser extent on short spurs are short-lived.

Grapes are borne on shoots of the current (present) season's growth, which come from buds formed on canes one year old.

Your burford holly berries will be produced by buds formed on wood grown in 1969. This is also true for the spring flowering shrubs such as golden bell and spirea.

You can see, then, why a basic understanding of the fruit and/or flowering habits of a plant is important. Anyone can cut a plant but very few prune with a purpose. There is a difference.

SHOPPING CENTER DRIVING
Traffic can be heavy in downtown or shopping center areas. The movements of people, as well as cars, are apt to be obscured by other vehicles, buildings, etc. Check carefully before moving. Then drive slowly. Take your time and use care in getting into and out of parking areas. Be alert at all times to the movement of people and cars around you.
