

GARDENING HINTS

"GOOD ENOUGH" IS NOT CORRECT

By ARTHUR BILTYCLIFF

Last week a patron asked me to look at a rose bush she had divided, bracking two bushes. The second bush was transplanted to moved in order to let the graft that's the first thing I look for, correct transplanting.

I told her the mud should be removed in order to let the graft become dry in order to put out buds for the structure of the future bush. She said it was "Good enough." I tried to explain that mud on a graft keeps the wood wet and therefore to a plant it tries to re-root itself because it is being handled more as a cutting than as a bush already rooted.

I reminded her the Herald told everyone three weeks ago the great importance to keep the graft in the sun. She still insisted "It was good enough," just leave it be. It suited her fine. Being I have the opportunity to write this column, bear with us and read another great truth that is equal to the bud bearing graft.

Some of you won't believe me either when I tell you the following message. Here we go: "How old are you soldier?" Eighteen. Do you belong to any church? Most of the time I go to a Baptist church because that's the one I started in.

Clerk! Mark this soldier down as a "Christian." That sounded good to me for now I belonged to something beside the army. Who told me that I was a Christian? The army said so, my folk said so, Sunday school teachers said so, the preachers said so, and anyone who saw me go into a church or chapel said so. Eight years later, now 28, I was walking down the street on the Kentucky-Tennessee line in Camp Campbell, going to my barracks and a "voice" beckoned me three times to go into the chapel which was close by. Mind you, this was Wednesday afternoon at quarter to five, just before supper. I didn't want to go in no old chapel. I wasn't that religious. Nevertheless, I gave in and went inside. Nearly 10 minutes to five after I bowed my head in reverence to the Deity or something or other, I told this "Bible talk God" to let me know if there really is a God because I had a great need to be filled some how, and because I didn't have something or someone to "believe" in. In the twinkling of an eye, while bowed to this calling power, a great light that was so big, and tall expanding millions of miles heavenward, and brilliant to the extent that it was as soft as could be seen. Would you believe that I saw the light of the world, as written in the Bible? In those brief moments I saw God revealed to me. Can you imagine, out of the millions of people on this earth I was given the opportunity to "See" God. If I hadn't gone into the chapel on the third beckoning call, I would have missed the greatest opportunity of a lifetime. Let me say it one more time. On Wednesday afternoon at quarter to five, August 13, 1943, I saw God. You don't believe me. Open your Bible to Matthew 5, line 8.

My eyes were opened to a new word. Once I was blind but now I can "see." It was done by revelation.

If I had died at 4:30 that day, age 28, I would have landed in hell, because I was believing what others told me to believe, and millions of so called church going Christians, and stay at homes, are living the same kind of a belief.

Now that I "know" God, I believe on my own, therefore, mine is a real belief, not a blind belief led by the blind. Too many people confess their Christianity yet don't really know Christ. This is like the woman who believes its "all right to leave mud on the graft and believes the plant will grow up right.

The plant or you will not grow up right because it is hindered and a lot of people won't go thru the pearly gates either believing

Textile Firms Set Promotion

All textile companies in the Kings Mountain area will combine their efforts during the month of April in a promotion designed to attract prospective employees to textile careers.

The textile companies are participating in "Textile Futures Month," a program sponsored by the American Textile Manufacturers Institute during April 1970.

"being called a Christian is 'good enough.' This is what will happen. The plant will surely dwindle away but for people many will pass to the door but few will pass inside. Ye preach and teach in my name and cast out devils in my name, but I 'know' yet not. Depart from me. If this woman wouldn't believe me about the bush, and some of you won't believe that I saw the 'Light of the World,' take this little bit of advice. Talk to the Lord like I did and if you talk to Him right he will reveal himself in such a way you 'will' have something to really believe in. I can't make you believe, but I sure can give you something to think about and do something about it.

Kyle Smith, personnel director of Duplex International, speaking for the companies, said "We plan to make everybody in the local area, conscious of the fact that the textile industry needs people and that it can offer satisfying and rewarding careers to anyone who is willing to work and learn. There are jobs available to people with all levels of education with or without prior textile experience."

"By combining our efforts, we cooperating companies can let more people hear or see the slogan for the campaign Get A Real Job . . . In Textiles. Mr. Smith said that there are numerous job openings in the cooperating companies, including positions both for the experienced and inexperienced, and for both white collar and blue collar jobs.

"We urge anyone who wants to learn more about a textile career to visit any one of the personnel offices of our companies. They'll find that our people will discuss the possibilities fully and frankly. All of the cooperating companies participating are equal opportunity employers."

Winter Driving Danger Subsides; Spring Ahead

RALEIGH — The many dangers of winter driving are subsiding in North Carolina, but the dangers of spring and summer vacation travel begin March 27-30 with the Easter weekend, according to Colonel Edwin C. Guy, commander of the North Carolina State Highway Patrol.

"Many people," Guy said, "choose the Easter weekend to begin their vacation travel pattern that continues through Labor Day. They hurry to get where they are going, stay as long as they can, and hurry to get back home. Last year, during the Easter weekend, there were 20 North Carolinians who didn't make it."

The Patrol commander said the state recorded 1,364 highway crashes during the Easter weekend in 1969. In addition to the fatalities, there were 802 injuries. Department of Motor Vehicles figures show that 1,202 traffic law violations were involved in the crashes. More than 300 were the result of speeding. Failure to yield

"In at least half of the fatal accidents," Guy pointed out, "drunken driving was a factor. This is an established fact in fatal accidents that occur year around, and there is ample evidence to indicate that it is even more a factor on long holiday weekends."

"We're off to a good start in 1970," Guy said. "We have fewer fatalities than during the same period last year. North Carolinians are beginning to drive with greater care. We hope the motoring public will keep this up. The
