FIX-IT TIP

Never replace a fuse in an electrical circuit with some other substitute, such as a penny, a slug or something similar. You are eliminating all protection if you do so. Use the correctly rated fuse for that particular circuit. Do not replace a 15-amp fuse with one of 20 amps. A 15-amp fuse protects a circuit made up of 14-gauge wire, generally carrying nothing heavier than lights and small appliances. A 20-amp fuse protects a circuit of 12-gauge wire; a 30-amp fuse one of 10-gauge wire. Most older homes have only 14-gauge wire.
