with no payments due for the first six months after the card is first used.

Similarly, the bank will make an auto loan to the graduate and the first monthly installment may be deferred for six months. In addition, the interest is at a favorable rate.

"A large number of young college graduates find they need an immediate source of funds as well as a base of credit. This is key to the high initial cost of setting up housekeeping, clothing requirements and the necessity for transportation. Through Super Start, First-Citizen Bank fulfills all these needs as well as establishing a needed financial relationship for the young man or woman embarking on a career," Pope explained.

"While Chapel Hill was selected as the test market, the program will be expanded into all college markets served by First-Citizens if it continues to enjoy the wide acceptance it has experienced in the initial weeks," Pope indicated.

Super Start is a copyrighted program of the bank.

The Veterans Corner

THE VETERANS CORNER—Editor's Note: Below are authoritative answers by the Veterans Administration to some of the many current questions from former servicemen and their families. Further information on veterans benefits may be obtained at any VA office or your local service organization representative.

Q—I was discharged from the Army because of a leg injury, and accepted severance pay in a lump sum. Since I have been awarded disability compensation by the VA, can you tell me why I am not being paid?

A.—Disability compensation for your leg injury will be withheld and applied against the amount of severance pay until the full amount is liquidated. After that, VA will start sending compensation checks if your disability is still rated 10 percent or more by our standards.

Q—If a veteran arrange for his National Service Life Insurance to be paid in a lump sum, may his beneficiary select another method of payment?

A.—Yes. The NSLI beneficiary can have all or part of the insurance paid in monthly installments over a period of years, or for life. But the beneficiary cannot select a lump sum payment if the insured designated monthly payments.

Q—My husband has been reported as missing in action. I understand that I may now be eligible for educational benefits through the Veterans Administration, is this true?

A.—Yes. Recent legislation (PL 91-584) authorizes educational benefits for wives of prisoners of war or veterans missing in action for a total of more than 90 days. For further information contact the nearest VA office or your local veterans service organization representative.

First Citizens Begins Program

First-Citizen Bank & Trust Company has successfully initiated a test marketing program in Chapel Hill for graduates of the University of North Carolina, which offers special benefits to help new graduates as they begin their careers.

Called Super Start, the program provides those graduating from both under graduate schools and graduate schools and planning to work in North Carolina with many special bank services.

In outlining the program, N. W. Pope, vice president and director of marketing for the statewide bank, explained most students graduating from college have an immediate need for both favorable credit opportunities and a sound personal banking relationship. With Super Start, First-Citizen Bank provides both.

Any student graduating from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill this spring or summer will be able to sign up for the program provided he will be employed and reside in North Carolina. The applicant must be 21 or have a parent or guardian sign for him.

By signing up for the free program, the student will receive free checking service, checks and a safe deposit box for one year. In addition, the person will be provided a Master Charge card, which he can use immediately
