Flower Show Plans Underway; Southern Show Opening In Charlotte

CHARLOTTE. — Have you ever tried to decorate a house in a word?

It can be done, especially if you are decorating for a holiday like Thanksgiving or Christmas.

Take words like "Bountiful," "Joy" or "Music." You can create an atmosphere with these words in a table setting, mantle decorations and floral arrangements that will enhance your holiday entertaining.

"Words That Dreams Are Made Of" is the theme of the Flower Show in the 4th annual Southern Christmas Show, November 11-12-13-14, at the Charlotte Merchandise Mart.

"The popularity of the Flower Show Selection has grown considerably in the last few years," said Bob Zimmerman, "resident of Southeastern Shows, Inc., which produces the Southern Christmas Show."

"We think it's due not only to the exceptional arrangements but also to the fact that the public can see them in the exact settings for which they were designed."

"Tables are set with bright cloths, china and centerpieces and mock mantles are decorated as if right in the home."

Two classes are open to members of both federated and non-federated garden clubs and two classes are invitational. One of the latter is a special exhibit of "Bells" and will have five entries done by nationally accredited flower show judges.

The judges are Mrs. Don Fultz Merry Oaks Club, Mrs. Arch Wakefield, Colonial Garden Club Mrs. Robert Griffin, Sardiswood Garden Club.

Mrs. Kenneth Shields, Garden Lovers of Mountainbrook and Mrs. C. A. Fant, Lady Slipper Garden Club.

judged. Mrs. R. L. Young, Belvedere Garden club will design a Thanksgiving table called "Heritage". Mrs. Frank Arrington, Impatiens Garden Club will decorate a Christmas breakfast table with the theme of "Giving."

Mrs. C. W. Bryd, Hoe and Hope Garden Club, will set a table with "Joy" for dinner on Christmas Day and Mrs. J. B. Carpenter, Sardiswood Garden will decorate a table for New Year's Brunch, titled "Unity".

Christmas mantles will be judged in competition on how well the theme words are carried out, on creativity and on materials. Themes for the six classes of artistic arrangements include "Bountiful", "Neighbors", "Children", and "Peace".

No artificial flowers or foliage are permitted in the show. The division will be judged by the Standard Show system, and first place winners will receive a $10 award. A Best of Show award will also be given of $25.

SUGAR N' SPICE

Spinach juice makes wonderful compress for oily skin. Thick, coarse hair that seems to "swell" in damp weather should be kept medium-length, cut in layers or taper-cut, for easier handling.

Frame a bulging forehead in large, shallow waves of hair brought forward to minimize the bulge.

For that extra-special evening, dust frosted blusher over foundation and powder; use lightly-frosted brush on eye shadow; slick icy gloss over lipstick.

With the vast array of foods to choose from sometimes we tend to forget our old favorites.

How much do you know about molasses? There are three major types on the market: unsulphured and blackstrap. Unsulphured molasses is made from the juice of sun-ripened sugar cane which has matured in the hot tropical climate of the West Indies. It is a product of sugar making, and blackstrap molasses is a waste product of sugar making.

The rich juice is squeezed from cane grown in the West Indies and the moisture is gently evaporated. The best of each grade of molasses is selected and then by careful aging and skillful blending in the United States the fine unsulphured type molasses is produced. If you will read the fine print on the label of one of our leading brands you will see that our port city, Wilmington, North Carolina, is a leading processor of unsulphured molasses. This product as the name indicates has no sulphur and none of the sugar has been removed. There is a mellow flavor with no "bite."

Molasses is an energy food with a high content of true sugars—sucrose, dextrose, and levulose, and also contains iron, calcium and thiamine.

For young and old, molasses gives a distinctive flavoring to a wide variety of nourishing and healthful treats. There is nothing simpler than a "Milk Lassi" for a quick snack or easy addition to breakfast. "Molasses Oat Cookies" are delicious while being high in nutritive value. You might want to serve them for Halloween parties along with frosty cold milk, apples, peanuts and other goodies.
